RED SOX BATTLE ON COAST

By MERTON E. BURKE.
American Correspondent on "Red Sox" Const-to-Coast Tour.

Merton E. Burke.

RIDONDO, Cal., March 2.—To-day is a big day for Los Angeles, for Bill Carrigan and his Red Sox recruits have been given the keys to the city and they are opening the doors.

If there is anything in this energetic town that the Boston baseball players want, they only have to ask for it.

The program starts with special cars, a flower automobile parade, the opening of a new ball park, a game with the Angels, with all the fans for miles around in attendance, and winds up with a banquet and the like o' that.

These Angelenos are certainly royal sports when it comes to hospitality.

This foremost Carrigan has his men out for their last limbering up before opening the season for actual business.

Here is the promising lineup:

Biggert, left field; Myers, right field; Perry, center field; Janvrin, third base; Yerkes, short stop; Pringle, second base; Engle, first base; Carrigan, catcher, with Sheehan and Nunamaker as substitutes, and a long list of able men to fill the box, with Karger, Frank Smith, Charles Smith, McHale, Moser, Dale, Hollis, Sawyer, O'Brien and Hall to choose from.

Thoney May Play To-day.

It is probable that Sawyer will be given a good hard trying out. Thoney, if his arm permits, only step into the infield.

After leading the boys over for a week they appear to be the goods to me. They shape up in a nice little team, which any man could bet money on. Anybody in Boston want to lay it?

Last night the Regulars, in charge of Manager Donovan, started for San Francisco for a change of scene and to begin playing the Northerners. Before going, Donovan put them through a hard, grilling practice and they stood the test well. The outfield are on to the game, playing hard and in shape for the season. I am inclined to think that the infield is worrying Manager Donovan a little, and he is playing out Yerkes, Engle, Janvrin and Priepke with a view to sparing on the old men or making some changes.

I have noted that he has been trying to speed up Purtell and Bradley. Wagner is in the finest shape that he ever was. Bradley is rather more clever than he was last year. Of the catching staff, Carrigan certainly came back as good as ever. Moodus is next lighter. Williams and Thomas are the most promising of the others.

19 Pitchers on Roster.

The team has only nineteen pitchers up to date. I understand the management have their eyes upon a Coast man. It is doubtful if he is taken on, however, for I do not believe he shapes up to the mark.

Moser certainly can pitch some. Sawyer has the finest young curve that ever came out of Maine. O'Brien has a mighty shift of speed and twists. Arellanes has his own kick and he better than at the first of last year. And so on down the list.

"The team is in better shape than when we left Hot Springs last year," Manager Donovan said. But then he always is optimistic. I will say, however, that some of the men are better than they were last year. The whole management are trying their best to keep Joe Wood from overdoing his neck before the season opens. Up to date they have succeeded.

The Regulars are on their way. Donovan has left the Commercials to give them a chance to cut loose To-day we'll see what they do to the Angelenos.

Harold Janvrin, the schoolboy youngster, is up to date the leading social light at Redondo. He has danced with more pretty Angels inside than any one else at the shore. His sisters need not worry, however, for I have seen to it each evening that he turns in at a respectable hour. "I've been to dances before," he confided.

PUBLIC UTILITY PLEA IS HEARD

The members of the special legislative committee on public utilities were reprimanded by Secretary Joseph B. Eastman of the Public Franchise League to-day for not being on hand to-day in the room scheduled for a hearing on the proposed establishment of a Public Utilities Commission. Before the work was done by the various public service committees of the State, Governor Foss recommended such a commission in his inaugural address. The Public Franchise League has petitioned for an investigation as to the advisability of creating such a commission.

Eastman refused to proceed with his argument to-day until a respectful hearing was given him. Senator Mellen of Worcester appeared in about five minutes, and the hearing went on.

The eight other members of the committee are Senators Brown of Medford and Cutler of Roxbury, and Representatives Washburn of Worcester, Hardy of Huntington, Cox of Boston, Pope of Lowell, Lancaster of Boston and Reddy of South Boston. Some of them were attending sessions of other committees of which they are members.

Mr. Eastman quoted decisions of the Wisconsin and New York Commissions which he characterized as more thorough and able than any Massachusetts commission can produce. "The Railroad Commission here must have time to prepare such decisions. It hasn't the power to employ experts to aid it," he said. "The merger, transit and electrification questions were referred to short-lived special commissions. In New York and Wisconsin it would be considered absolutely absurd for such questions to be taken up by anyone but the public service commission."

Representative Cushing interrupted to state that conditions in New York and Wisconsin are entirely different; that the Massachusetts system is satisfactory to the public at this time.

INTEREST ON LOANS SUBJECT OF BILLS

Small loans and "money sharks" were the subjects for public discussion before the Committee on Legal Affairs this morning. Attorney John J. Walsh of Boston presented two bills, the purpose of which is to restrict the limit of interest from 18 per cent. per annum to 12 per cent. and reduce the money charge from one exceeding $5 to not exceeding $3 for the actual expense of making and securing the loan of less than $1,000, and forbids in the second bill to prohibit exorbitant rates of interest by providing that if there is no agreement or provision of law for a different rate the interest money shall be at the rate of 6 on each $100 for a year; that it shall be illegal to pay, reserve or contract for any charge, bonus or discount in excess of $12 on each $100.

THE LOWEST ADVERTISING RATE IN NEW ENGLAND

No newspaper in New England reaches for its advertisers as many readers at as low a cost as does

THE BOSTON AMERICAN

It costs an advertiser but one and one-hundredths cents ($.0101) per inch per thousand circulation, or seven-hundred-twenty-five thousandths of a mill ($.000725) per agate line per thousand circulation.

From the most reliable statistics available the BOSTON AMERICAN is surpassed in the lowness of its advertising rate (and then only by a slight margin) by only two newspapers in America—the New York Journal and the Portland (Oregon) Journal, a paper with 37,161 circulation.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is subject to the most rigid investigation by anyone at any time.

BOY BURGLARS GO TO A CELL

Harold Hunt, twenty, and his brother, Frederick, fifteen, the youthful burglars, arrested on a charge of breaking and entering the building at No. 345 Washington street last night, were arraigned in the Municipal Court to-day.

Harold, who was charged with five counts, appeared before Judge Wentworth. He waived the reading of the charge and was held for the Grand Jury in $3,200 bail. His brother appeared in the juvenile session before Judge Baker on a similar charge. He was held for the Grand Jury in $1,000 bail.

Mrs. Annie J. Wundre of No. 13 Decatur street, South End, was arraigned before Judge Sullivan on a charge of receiving stolen property. She pleaded not guilty and was held in the Grand Jury in $1,000 bail. Mrs. Wundre told the Judge that she did not know of the stolen property. She said that the two boys lived with her but ate and saw little of them.

Father Is Heartbroken.

John Hunt, the father of the boys, who lives in Sixth street, South Boston, went to the City Hall avenue station when he learned of his son's arrest. With tears streaming down his cheeks he told the captain that he had given up all hopes of ever reforming his son Harold but that he had hopes of making young Frederick a good boy.

The pieces alleged to have been entered by Harold Hunt are, No. 345 Washington street; 246 Washington street, the Boston Dental Supply company, 171 Tremont street and the office of Field & Greene, No. 100 Lincoln street.

His brother Frederick was charged with breaking into No. 139 Lincoln street and No. 345 Washington street, where he was arrested.

Mrs. Isabella Watt, who runs the lodging house where the two burglar and Mrs. Wundre lived, and where the police found considerable of the loot, told the Court at to-day that she was not surprised to learn that the young men were burglars.

Suspicious of Lodgers.

"I had suspicions of the pair for a week," said Mrs. Watt. "Two weeks ago Monday the older of the two men came to the house in the forenoon and asked to see a double and a single room. He said he wanted the double room for himself and his wife and the single room for his younger brother. He gave his name as Harry Hart.

"It was less than an hour Hart came back with his wife and younger brother and took the room on the second floor. Mrs. Hart carried a bag in each hand, and each of the young men carried two large suitcases.

"I thought it was funny that none of the five went to work and one day I asked the woman one day what the young men did for a living. She told me that her husband was a cook and that his brother was a farm hand, and she told me that she went out and worked by the day.

"About ten days ago the older brother wanted to change the locks on the two rooms. I refused to permit him to then and I intended to look into their rooms and see what was in there. But all three would not be out of the house at the same time. If the two men were out the woman would stay in the room, and if the man and wife were out the young man would be left in the house."

PROPOSE LIGHT WORK FOR CONSUMPPTIVES

Patients at the outdoor camp for consumptives at Mataqan should be given light work to test the value of carefully regulated labor for patients, according to recommendations made by Dr. Edwin A. Locke, chief medical officer of the Consumptives' Hospital department in his annual report submitted to-day. Dr. Locke also recommends that a card catalogue be made of all consumptives in the city of Boston in order that more complete cooperation with other tuberculosis hospitals and agencies caring for consumptives may be attempted, for there is now incomplete and constant surveillance over them. The department is in need of an X-ray plant, a laboratory for pathological, more cottage wards and an automobile ambulance, Dr. Locke suggests that these be furnished at once if the money is available.

ROGER O'MARA QUITS MISS ARNOLD SEARCH

NEW YORK, March 2.—John S. Kieth, chief counsel for the family of missing Dorothy Arnold, declared to-day that Roger O'Mara, the Pittsburg detective hired by George S. Gricecon, Jr., had given up the hunt for the missing heiress. Mr. Kieth also said that John W. Arnold, brother of the missing girl, had returned to his office after running down a clue which had at first seemed very favorable.

EXPOSE PLOT TO ROB CITY

Following the indictment by the grand jury and surrender of John L. Sullivan, formerly a fireman in the employ of Boston, Senator Lemuel J. Hamlin, in connection with a plot to defraud the city and lumber firms by means of forged orders, it was rumored at the Court House to-day that other indictments had been found.

Other arrests were expected at any time, according to the talk that was heard in the corridors of the courthouse.

The indictments found were secret, and nobody connected with the District Attorney's office would talk about them.

Sullivan, who lives at No. 2 Baker's court, South Boston, surrendered himself when he learned that he had been indicted. He furnished $1,000 bail and was released without being arraigned in court.

The police say Sullivan disclosed any criminal intent in his connection with the case, and to have related a story that sent the inspectors out on a search for several other men.

Sullivan was indicted on charges of larceny and conspiracy.

The police believe that astounding revelations will be made before the case is ended, and that the plot to defraud the city is a gigantic one with many ramifications. It is said they recall the "blanket fraud" case a few weeks ago, where alleged city officials placed orders for blankets and other supplies for the Chapin Street Home.

Order by Telephone.

The police story of the case is that early last December a telephone order was received at the office of the Hall Lumber Company of No. 33 Broad street, for the immediate delivery, at Belmont park, East Boston, of 7,000 feet of spruce lumber, valued at $200. The order purported to come from the Boston Park Department.

The following day another order for the lumber, written on the letterheads of the Park Department of the city and signed by D. Henry Sullivan, the superintendent, was received by the Hall Company.

That day, December 3, the 7,000 feet of spruce was delivered, as per telephonic instructions, to Belmont park. It was discovered that the lumber was carted away from East Boston soon after and it was found on a flat car in the South Boston freight yards of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, consigned to a man in South Weymouth.

It was also been discovered that a few days later, on or about December 6 or 8, an order for nearly 10,000 feet of lumber was placed with E. G. Pond, lumber dealer of South Boston. This order purported to come from the sewer division.

Hall Scents Fraud.

That the fraud was discovered was due to James R. Hall, one of the partners of the Hall Lumber Company. Mr. Hall said that on the afternoon of December 2 he was called on the telephone, and a man who represented himself as being "Mr. Sullivan of the Park Department" placed an order, calling for the delivering of 7,000 feet of spruce lumber in Belmont park.

The next day, December 3, as is customary in all city orders, an order was forthcoming in the mail. On delivery of the lumber on the afternoon of December 3, Mr. Hall submitted the bill to Superintendent Sullivan of the Park Department, with the request that the bill be approved at once and passed along as quickly as possible.

The next morning the bill for the lumber was received in the office of the superintendent of the Park and Public Grounds Department and after some inquiry the case called Mr. Hall on the telephone and asked the meaning of the bill, as no record of any such order could be found in the department.

James R. Hall then talked with Superintendent Sullivan over the telephone and they concluded that the order was a forgery. It was decided to call the police into the case. Mr. Hall called police headquarters and notified the department of the facts and Inspector Morris Wolf was detailed on the case.

BRYCE MAY ASSIST IN CANADIAN PACT

LONDON, March 2.—Sir Edward Grey, British Foreign Minister, announced to-day that Ambassador Bryce had the entire approval of the English government in assisting at the negotiations for the proposed reciprocity pact between Canada and the United States. This statement was made in the House of Commons in reply to repeated interpellations by J. F. Remnant. Sir Edward stated that the official papers bearing on this part Mr. Bryce took will be published shortly.

INCOME TAX BEATEN IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

CONCORD, N. H., March 2.—The State Senate to-day defeated the income tax amendment to the State constitution by a vote of 14 to 9. Of the fourteen who voted against the amendment five were Democrats and nine Republicans. Of those who voted in favor three were Democrats and six were Republicans. The House passed the amendment almost unanimously. Both parties recommended it in their platforms during the campaigns prior to election. Governor Bass recommended it in his inaugural.

MANTI GETS THE LIMIT; 18 YEARS FOR DELOREY

Sentence Follows a Long Conference of Judges and Attorneys in the Case. Youths Nervous at Hearing.

James Mantir and Peter Delorey, convicted of the murder of Annie Mullins three years ago, were to-day sentenced by Judge Lloyd E. White in the Superior Criminal Court at East Cambridge.

Mantir, who was found guilty of murder in the second degree, was sentenced to life imprisonment in the State Prison at Charlestown. Delorey, who was found guilty of manslaughter, was sentenced to serve from eighteen to twenty years in the same prison.

Before sentence was pronounced the three lawyers representing the defendants District Attorney Higgins and Judges White and Fox, who presided at the boys' trial, held a long conference to the Judge's lobby. The discussion that took place there was a heated one. Loud voices penetrated into the court room.

Statement by Counsel.

When District Attorney Higgins moved for sentence, Attorney McDermott, representing Mantir, arose and said: "In view of what has taken place in the Judge's lobby, and what Your Honor has heard, I have nothing to say for the defendant Mantir."

Attorney Winslow then made a similar statement in regard to Delorey, referring to the conference that had taken place previously.

Mantir and Delorey were brought over from the jail at 10 o'clock. Court Officers Rhodes and Faircloth brought them into court. Both boys were suffering, though they appeared nervous. Mantir wore a new suit, with his hair trimmed pompadour.

The youths took their seats in the court room at just 10 o'clock. Attorney Frank McDermott appeared for Mantir. Peter Delorey was represented by Lawyer Henry H. Winslow and John A. E. Maroney. These three men with the District Attorney retired to the lobby for the conference.

This lasted for nearly half an hour. During the echoes of the heated discussion could be heard plainly in the courtroom. They became louder as the discussion progressed. The voice of Mr. Higgins could be heard in reply and it showed traces of heat and excitement. Both boys appeared nervous while waiting for the men to reappear.

When they finally did come out District Attorney Higgins moved at once for sentence. Judge White then said:

"In the case of the defendant Mantir, he having been found guilty of murder in the second degree, the court has no discretion. The law under the statute he shall be imprisoned for the rest of his natural life.

"In the case of Delorey, who was found guilty of manslaughter, the court does have discretion, and feels that justice is equally guilty with Mantir. Therefore the court does not feel that it can give due consideration between the minimum and maximum penalty in his case."

Judge White then handed the papers to the clerk and while the court stenographer Mantir stood with his hands on the rail before him as his life sentence was read.

SENATORS STILL FILIBUSTERING

WASHINGTON, March 2.—With lights shed on almost a hopeless tangle as a result of a filibuster against the tariff board bill advocated by President Taft, the Senate resumed its deliberations at 11 o'clock this morning. The insurgents fought for the administration measure, but were opposed by Senator Stone of Missouri.

The regulars were lined up with the insurgents to get a vote on the tariff commission measure. This was in accordance with the agreement that followed the Lorimer case to be brought to a vote Saturday. Bailey, the Republican floor leader, led the battle for the administration measure when the Senate got down to work after the routine business, and on his motion the Senate voted whether it should take up the measure. It decided to do so.

Senator Bailey declared the filibusterers for their attempt to delay legislation. As chairman of the appropriation committee all the big money bills are under his direction.

"It is still possible to pass all the appropriation measures before Saturday noon if a vote can be had on the tariff board bill," he asserted.

On a roll-call vote the Senate decided to go ahead on the measure and the Republicans declared their hopes that they would be able to get a vote within an hour or two.

If the appropriation bills are put through, the only thing left to come is extra session in the McCall reciprocity measure.

Encouraged by the vote to take up the tariff commission measure, which stood 46 to 25, the insurgents determined to block the Democratic filibuster by holding the Senate in session continuously if necessary until the bill was passed.

COLDER TO-NIGHT, FORECASTER SAYS

All signs to the contrary, there is no real Spring in sight just yet. The weather is "seasonable—just seasonable," the weather man says. Though the sun came out bright and warm to-day, the local forecaster refused to predict it as a harbinger of spring. "Nothing doing, really," he said. "Not the sign of a robin or a bluebird. Now zephyrs, green fields or flowers. It will be colder to-night and remain cold for several days."

WORK IS URGED FOR PRISONERS

Penal Commissioner Fred S. Gore in his annual report to-day suggested, among other things, that the prisoners at the House of Correction Deer Island, be given suitable work for training land, an experiment which is proving of much success in the penal institutions of Europe.

Commissioner Gore says: "It is a fine belief that the open air treatment of criminals is the correct one and that by its methods more reforms can be accomplished, particularly among those whose only offence is drunkenness. Build up a man physically and the mind becomes better able to control the criminal tendencies and to withstand the temptations and desire for drink.

"Moderate cost buildings for housing and shelter without the usual prison look of iron bars and cells would be sufficient to confine one who has simply offended against public order. A short term prisoner rarely attempts escape as the penalty is great and the object attained is of little value."

The Rev. William J. Scanlan, S. J., Catholic chaplain at the House of Correction, Deer Island, in his annual report to Penal Master strongly urges the segregation of the mere drunkards confined at the institution from the habitual criminal.

Fr. Scanlan believes that much evil results from the mingling of the petty offenders with the hardened criminal. Commenting upon the he says: "I am firmly persuaded that much evil results from their confinement in such an institution as the House of Correction. The evil results do not all follow immediately, but after release. The mere drunkard has practically no chance to reform now, from the moral standpoint, because of this association with the criminal, while the criminal has nothing to lose."

GRAFT PROBE IN TRAFFIC SQUAD

Every policeman doing street traffic duty in Boston is under suspicion and being watched by other policemen in plain clothes as a result of the arrest of Patrolman Edward J. Ford of Station 2, on a charge of solicitation and accepting a bribe from a teamster last Tuesday, on Tremont street, near King's Chapel. A general investigation of the "traffic squad" is expected, although officials at Pemberton square are silent about the case.

Ford's accuser, Theodore H. Simpson, a driver for a spring water concern, complained to-day that the first Deputy Superintendent of Police Watts and which resulted in Ford's arrest.

Graft Hint, He Says.

Simpson's story is that he left his team in front of No. 42 Tremont street and that when he came out of the building Ford "shed him up" and declared the teamster had violated traffic regulations by leaving a team standing for more than ten minutes. Simpson says he denied this but that Ford told him he had been timed and was liable to a fine of $15. Then Simpson alleges Ford intimated the matter could be "smoothed." Simpson says Ford told him that other teamsters always "settled with the cop" to avoid being taken into court and fined. "I've held up fifteen of you fellows to-day," Ford said, according to Simpson.

Marked Two Bills.

The teamster says he had no money with him but promised Ford he would see him later on. He says he told his story to two friends, who advised him what to do. He declares he marked two bills and after posting his friends as witnesses handed the bills to Ford. Then he went to police headquarters and told his story to Watts. He says that Ford was searched in his presence and one of the marked bills found on him.

Ford denied having seen Simpson before and declared the whole affair was cooked up. He showed his book in which he took the names of delinquent teamsters, but Simpson's name was not among them. He was suspended pending an investigation and hearing by a trial board.

A visit to his home at No. 10 Corwin street, Dorchester, revealed the fact that he had left there as usual yesterday morning to go to work and that his young wife knew nothing about the charges. Ford is about thirty years old. He has been in the department about four years, and was stationed at the junction of Tremont street and Court street.

SEEK MEDAL FOR YOUNG HEROINE

Thirteen-year-old Josie Picroski, who a few days ago ran barefoot onto the ice on Chicopee river and saved two schoolmates from drowning, is going to get a Carnegie medal if the efforts of her friends and admirers can secure it for her.

The movement was started as soon as the little girl's heroic act became known. It is well under way and everybody interested is doing all they can to have the girl honored.

In the meantime the girl herself modestly gives the credit for her achievement to her pet dog, "Beauty." She says "Beauty" had one of the little girls rescued by the hole and was pulling her out when help arrived.

The two girls saved were members of a trio that started to cross the river. They were Mary Zyburn, Victoria Karrenwaski and Mabel Grotowski. Mary Zyburn was drowned.

"No, I wasn't afraid," said Josie, when asked about her heroic act, "I simply felt that I must do something. I was in the house looking out of the window, and I had taken my shoes and stockings off. I saw the girls go over and come back, and then I saw them fall.

"There was nobody in sight. I called to Beauty. We ran down to the river together. I grabbed a piece of wood on the bank, but I didn't need it, as I could reach them without it. Both the girls I pulled out had to be pulled out twice, for they were so cold that they couldn't hold onto the edge of the ice.

"Beauty had the little girl who drowned by the hair. He saved a man's life once, and I think he would have got her, but she got excited and hit him. Then as he let go and she went under the ice. He tried to follow her, but I called to him. Once or twice after that he tried to jump in.

"But what makes me feel worse, was a man who was standing near the bank. He just stood there and watched. It made me very mad. I wanted to ask Beauty onto him."

FROTHINGHAM QUITS AFTER 42 YEARS

The State has lost one of its oldest officers in the retirement of Captain Joseph H. Frothingham, commander of the First Company, Coast Artillery Corps, M. V. M. Captain Frothingham, it is believed, might have retired as colonel of the organization in which he has a record of forty-two years' continuous service, but he preferred to remain captain of his company, which always has been known as "Joe Roxbury company." He enlisted in 1868. He has been senior captain of the militia more than twenty-five years. He served in the Spanish War with the corps.

And all the votes you get in March also count, of course, toward your standing in the main contest with its $35,000 prizes.

And the Main Chance.

Don't lose sight of the main contest, however, with its 1,000 prizes. The capital prize, an $8,000 house and two lots at Riverton-on-the-Charles, is a home for which many a man or woman strives a lifetime.

There are seven automobiles in the prize list, seven motor boats, seven pianos and a long list of other valuable prizes.

Do you live in District Three, for instance? District Three is the Massachusetts district, except Boston, Greater Boston and that part of the State west of the Connecticut River. If you live in that territory and are a motor boat enthusiast, why not win the Atlantic dory motor boat which is one of the District Three prizes?

The Atlantic dories built by the Atlantic Company of Amesbury have long been used as comfortable pleasure boats. The Atlantic dory offered in this contest is the "Gurnet," taking its name from the Gurnet dory type of boat.

VISCOUNT HERE; WANTS NO BRIDE

Viscount Exmouth of England, a visitor in Boston, thinks that twenty is too young an age for even a titled Englishman to think of marrying. And although the Viscount's age he denies he is in America in search of a wife.

"I want to see more of the world before I make my choice in the matrimonial line," said he. "I am still in school and under the English law yet an infant. I probably will not marry for many years yet.

"I am having the time of my life. Everything here in America is new to me and interesting. I shall always remember this trip, for American people make admirable hosts and every day I have so many pleasant engagements that the time seems to fly on wings.

"My family has a country estate near Exeter. I am Devon born and bred, as they say. In case I do not go into the House of Lords I am not quite sure what I would do. If, in fact, I considered good business for an English gentleman to sell or manufacture automobiles, but that is what I am most interested in."

Well, Well! a Cat Comes Back from Wellesley

Observe ye midnight mourners!
Once minstrels of the yard.
The subtle call of lecture hall
Has hushed each feline bard.

Our wails are sobs of sadness,
Our tails in sorrow curl
For friend or foe whose "innards" go
To train a Wellesley girl.

But see may smile to morrow,
Since eminent M. D.'s
Deny cause we as great debris
Can ourselves disorder.

HONEST, IT DID! BUT AS FOR THE COLLIE DOG —THAT'S DIFFERENT.

This is a short and simple story of a Wellesley cat that came back and of a dog that didn't.

John Slammin of No. 1 Front street, South Natick, owns the cat. It disappeared a week ago. Nobody knew what had become of pussy, but when the cat history of Wellesley College became known a few days ago, Mr. Slammin became suspicious.

"Our cat's gone to Wellesley," he remarked.

Pussy Was Hungry.

Then he called the attention of the Wellesley cat-catcher to the matter and told him just what kind of a cat it was. As a result the missing cat was returned today. And the cat was mighty glad to get home, too, as shown by the way it leaped at a bowl of milk that was set before it.

Just about the time the police learned of the return of this missing cat, the chauffeur of Edwin G. Alden rolled up to the police station and made this inquiry.

"Our shepherd dog has been missing for a month. I'd like to get a search warrant to go over the Wellesley buildings and see if they have the dog there."

The chauffeur was told that they only used cats for dissection at Wellesley, but he went away doubting the information and is likely to make a visit to Wellesley and look over the barn.

Wellesley Cat Farm.

Wellesley College will hereafter dissect its own cats, raised upon its own private cat farm, and it will be the first educational institution of its kind in the world to conduct such a farm for the sole purpose of breeding cats for experimental work in the girls' classes in anatomy.

The decision for a cat farm was reached by the faculty after a visit by Agent Russell of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Russell suggested it was somewhat of a handship to the people of the neighboring villages to lose their cats and feel that the felines they had reared and had grown to love were being cut to pieces for scientific research without their knowledge or consent.

"Snuffles," the pet cat of Mrs. Elmer Bent, of Natick, whose capture and death caused the cat agitation at Wellesley, has been buried in a tiny grave in the back yard of the Bent home. The Bent family followed the remains to the grave and placed sprigs of catnip on the mound.

CAT STOLEN IN ROXBURY FOR A MEDICAL SCHOOL

Mrs. Margaret F. Kane of No. 146 George street, Roxbury, whose Angora cat has been missing for a week or more, says she has learned that it was stolen from in front of her home by boys for a young man in Dorchester in the employ of a medical school.

"The people of Roxbury place just as much value on their pets now as do the people of Wellesley or Natick," said Mrs. Kane. About a year or more ago I got an Angora kitten. Last week "Tabby," for that is the name we gave the cat, was sitting on our doorstep. That was the last I saw of it. I made inquiries to neighbors about the cat, and I was told that there was a young man who told some boys to get him the cat, which they did.

"I notice of the boys who it was claimed had a hand in stealing the cat, and he told me that if he knew it was mine he could have got it back for me. He said that it was too late at that time, because the man he got it for had taken it to a certain medical school, and that it was dead.

"The young man, whose name I will withhold for the present, is not content with having boys get him cats, but he wants dogs just as well. There is Mrs. Lawless further up the street, who lost her fine specimen of a St. Bernard dog. In fact there are more than a dozen persons in this vicinity who have lost their pet dogs and cats."

Mrs. Steele Knight of Rockford street is another woman who complains of losing her cat. Mrs. William Cooney of Shirley street also says her cat is missing.

Mrs. Robert Moore of Burrill street lost a spotted white dog. She has asked the neighbors to assist her in finding it.

Mrs. Mary Lawless of No. 17 Clifton street has lost a valuable St. Bernard dog.

Cats and dogs belonging to persons who live on Norfolk avenue, Magazine street, Woodward avenue, Langdon, East Cottage and Dudley streets, are also missing.

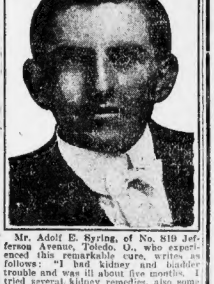
WINTHROP PARTIES DROP PRIMARIES

For the first time in the history of the town of Winthrop there will be no primaries to nominate candidates for town offices this year, for the annual election, on March 6, the only candidates for office with the exception of two independents, for whom the citizens may vote, are those who are on the joint ticket chosen by the Citizens' Civic League and the Town Government Association. These two organizations, formerly bitter opponents, compromised this year and cut out a single joint ticket.

Kidney Trouble

For Five Months Completely Cured by Seven Bottles of

Warner's Safe Cure



Mr. Adolf E. Syring, of No. 819 Jefferson Avenue, Toledo, O., who experienced this remarkable cure, writes as follows: "I had kidney and bladder trouble and was ill about five months. I tried several kidney remedies also some medicine from a doctor, but there was no relief whatever. I then heard of Warner's Safe Cure through an old friend of mine, but I did not care to try it, as I was afraid of patent medicines; but I found that I was mistaken, because as soon as I had used one bottle I was relieved. I used seven bottles in all and I was entirely cured in less than four months. I have never been troubled with my kidneys or bladder since."

Warner's Safe Cure is made from the fresh juices of roots and medicinal herbs gathered at the proper season in various quarters of the globe. Men skilled in botany and chemistry compound it. Put up in 50c. and $1.00 sizes and sold by druggists everywhere.

For constipation and biliousness take Warner's Safe Pills, purely vegetable, absolutely free from injurious substances, a perfect laxative. They do not gripe or leave any bad after effects. 25 cents a box.

To convince every sufferer from diseases of the kidneys and liver that WARNER'S SAFE CURE will absolutely cure, a sample bottle and a sample box of Warner's Safe Pills will be sent FREE of CHARGE, postpaid, to any one who will write WARNER'S SAFE CURE Co., Rochester, N. Y., and mention having seen this liberal offer in the Boston Daily American.

'THE INTERESTS' SEATED LORIMER

John Temple Graves Shows Direct Election Object Lesson in Senatorial Bribery Fight.

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—William Lorimer of Illinois, Senator of the United States, safely seated by a majority of six, to-day steps out into the keen of American public life as the object lesson and argument in the newest and most convincing force in favor of the popular election of Senators by the people. Three weeks ago Lorimer would have lost in the Senate by a majority larger than that which seated him. There was a clear majority against him. His partisans knew it, and every power of the filibuster was invoked successfully to prevent a ballot in the case.

Three weeks can work wonders when vast "interests" are working hand in hand with the weeks. A few days ago it became evident to the Lorimer forces that the majority was on the side of the "sitting member."

The three weeks and the "interests" had done their work.

And then the Lorimer forces gathered themselves together, seized the American Senate by the throat in another and a greater filibuster, held up the whole vast business of the country, tariff—tariff commission, appropriations, reciprocity and everything—until they compelled a vote to seat Lorimer.

Saved by Six Votes.

The work was completed. The vote was forty-six to forty—a hair's breadth out of the Senate's total vote.

Look at the vote. Every eminent lawyer in the Senate, weighers of evidence and judges of law, voted against Lorimer, save only Bailey. Read the names—Bacon of Georgia, one of the best lawyers of the South; Bourn of not a great legal luminary of the Northwest; Bowon of Nebraska, author of the income tax; Catheron, standing almost with Bailey at the Texas bar; Cummins, a great lawyer of Iowa; Dolliver of Wisconsin; Money, a great lawyer of Mississippi; Overman, a leader of the North Carolina bar and famous as a criminal lawyer; Perky, in the front rank of mississippi lawyers; Rayner, the great Maryland lawyer; Shively, a power in the Indiana courts; Sutherland, considered by the Presidents for the Supreme court, and Root of New York.

Bailey alone among the great lawyers of the Senate stood for Lorimer's seating against one.

An irreverent newspaper Bohemian who sat near me remarked at the close of the vote:

"If Lorimer's politics are too bad for Root, they must be tough indeed."

Note the Senators who voted for Lorimer:

Bulkley of Connecticut, just turned out of the Senate by popular wave; Burrows of Michigan, just defeated likewise; Carter of Montana, facing inevitable defeat; Depew of New York, turned out by the popular vote; Dick of Ohio, turned out by the people; Flint of California, lost out; Hale of Maine, turned out; Kean of New Jersey, abandoned by the people; Piles of Washington, succeeded by the Insurgent Poindexter; Scott of West Virginia, defeated.

Who Were With Him.

Ten Senators in all under the ban of the people's votes voted to sustain the bribery-stained Legislature of Illinois that sent Lorimer to Washington.

Now, mark: Every Senator allied or said to be allied with the great interests, voted for Lorimer. Of the old guard of privilege there were Brandegee, Briggs, Burrows, Carter, Crane, Depew, Dick, Dupont, Frye, Gallinger, Gamble, Hale, Kean, Oliver, Penrose, Scott, Smoot, Stevenson, Warren and Wetmore.

Eleven Democratic Senators voted for Lorimer. Eight Republicans voted against Lorimer, so that the proportion of political decay in the Democratic party is much less than the proportion of political virtue left in the Republican party.

It is impossible to estimate the effort which the interests have made in its behalf. A noted Senator of the East was two weeks ago against Lorimer. Within the fortnight powerful lumber interests of the Northwest with which the Eastern Senator was in partnership brought pressure upon him sufficient to overturn his vote. The names are withheld, but the facts are vouched for.

The Lorimer vindicating smells rank in the nostrils of the entire body of the republic. The Senate vindication will utterly fail to convince the country.

The Closing Scene.

Two-thirds of the great newspapers will continue to believe that Lorimer and the Illinois Legislature were co-partners in political iniquity. The great body of the people will continue to cherish this belief. The senate will come in for its full share of popular condemnation for the vote.

And in full view of the conditions named in this column the necessity for the election of Senators by the people rather than by corruptible Legislatures will become a popular war cry, which will supply the next Senate with more than the four votes needed to make a two-thirds majority in favor of an enthusiastic vote of the people in the right to choose their representatives.

The incidents of the closing scene were interesting. The floor of the Senate filled. Representatives standing five deep against the wall, the galleries packed and the corridors four deep for twenty feet from every door.

Promptly 4 o'clock—roll, eyesight and the public spirit—A notable speech, strong, clear, logical, and with the saving grace of brevity.

Lorimer's Weak Reply.

Simmons, of North Carolina, with almost an apology in manner and speech, rose to explain why he would vote against his distinguished colleague Overman, who was for Lorimer.

In some way Lorimer himself got the floor for answer part of Owen's speech. His effort was no more a match for effective, Smith of Michigan made a strong, clear speech of exposure, summed up a splendid colloquy with Bailey.

Then La Follette, master of opportunities and master of dramatic occasions, seized his opportunity. With only fifteen minutes left before the vote, he took the floor, shook his mane head and in tones solemn, slow and intensely dramatic, told the Senators that one after they were dead and eaten by worms the records of the evidence in this case would show that four members of the Illinois Legislature had confessed to having been bribed to vote for Lorimer.

"So down the records of the Senate," said La Follette, "and you will find no case like Lorimer's. Every line in the testimony proves that Lorimer's election was bribed, and that Lorimer knew it. The people and the future will know this, no matter what we do now. I do not know where the money came from."

Just as the Vice-President's gavel closed the debate La Follette said in tones this dramatic sentence: "But money did!"

In the Wisconsin election came from Wall Street."

The ballot held floor and galleries in tense silence. Not until Westcott, Lorimer's colleague, but one upon the list, was called was Lorimer's election safe. Then there was applauded, and the Senate broke rules for dinner.

Lorimer Is Ostracized.

Lorimer was out of sight of the press gallery. He either feared or fled the keen scrutiny of the Senate. He stood with his back against the wall on the Republican side near the Speaker's desk, with hands in his pockets. His expression never changed from Bacon's vote to Wetmore's.

When the ballot was ended he stood there all alone. Nobody came up to congratulate him. Nobody one. With hands still in his pockets he sauntered into the Senate corridor, where Depew and one or two others portentously shook his hand.

And twenty minutes later Lorimer of Illinois, this morning "sitting member," this evening seated member of the highest can Senate, after having halted with his political fortunes the whole cause of the Republic's business for a week, dined in the Senate restaurant—ABSOLUTELY ALONE.

WALLING TELLS OF FLIRTATION

NEW YORK, March 2.—William E. Walling, the wealthy Socialist writer, again took the stand to-day in the $100,000 breach of promise suit brought against him by Miss Anna Grunspan, and told more about his travels in Europe with the young Russian woman.

He told last night on the stand how he first met the girl through a flirtation on the streets in Paris, in June, 1905.

"I was walking down the Champs Elysees with a friend," he said, "and we saw two young women walking along. I said to one, 'My friend thinks he knows you.' We talked about the way Parisians met and talked with women on the streets at night. Finally we took a cab to an amusement place—a cheap sort of Coney Island.

"Miss Grunspan told me she didn't like the other girl, Blanche Le Blanc. 'Blanche is living with an old man,' she said, 'and I can't bear old men.'"

On the trip home in a cab the Socialist said Miss Grunspan let her head "rest tenderly" on his shoulder.

A couple of days afterward he met her by appointment in a cafe near her store. She continued her familiarity with him, he said and gave him a speedy account of the way men approached girls on the boulevards. Next she visited his rooms, she asserted. At first he met her two or three times a week, but eventually every night.

Used Pet Names.

"On our second meeting," Walling continued, "we took a carriage ride and had a wine supper. Later Anna Berthe began her familiarity again. Well, I learned more about Paris in a short while than I ever knew before. She talked of men at least every ten minutes and showed a surprising knowledge."

He admitted he had gushed over "this little sweetheart," and had used such endearing phrases as "You're just the sweetest, brightest girl in the world."

He denied unequivocally, however, that he had ever prompted marriage to her or had given her an engagement ring.

"What took place in the cab?" he was asked.

"The same sort of talk about the streets of Paris. She put her head on my shoulder on the way home."

"Toward the end of June she told me she could live nicely on 200 francs a month, and if I would give her that she would not have to work," Walling continued.

"On June 30, there were massacres in Russia and I wanted to know what was going on. It was decided that she should go along, as she had brothers there from whom she had not heard for several months.

"I went to the embassy and got the passports for myself and wife. They state as if I were married and I found myself getting into deeper water. I said I was married they asked my wife's name. I said Anna Berthe."

Walling testified that he and Miss Grunspan also lived in Berlin and in Switzerland. There was no talk of marriage in any of their travels, he said nor did he meet Miss Grunspan's mother, as she testified.

Separated in Switzerland.

Miss Grunspan was alternately vivacious and despondent, and Walling, who admitted that his main object was to get rid of her, said that he tried to equip her to earn a living by paying for her lessons in the line of work she wanted.

There was a settlement, Walling declared, when they separated in Switzerland. He thought it was a very square one.

Their next morning, Walling testified, was in Paris in June, 1906. Walling's fiancee, Miss Stromsky, to whom he said he had shown Miss Grunspan's letters, was with him. There was a scene and Miss Grunspan cried and said she was going to drown herself.

"Did you ever deceive her in any way?" asked his counsel.

"I don't think anything I ever said or did deceived her five minutes," Walling answered. "I think she understood perfectly all our relations."

Counsel for Walling introduced four experts in the law to show that breach of promise is not actionable in France, Germany or Switzerland, when his client is alleged to have made proposals of marriage to the plaintiff.

In this line of defence Mr. Fuchs first called Paul Chaussin, a member of the bar of France, but when it took that purported to contain the French code was refused in evidence. Mr. Fuchs, a legal battle lasting more than an hour was started. Miss Grunspan's counsel fought every attempt to have the book presented in evidence and in the end he kept it out.

MAN AGED 65 GETS BRIDE 17

To-day is one that Mary Pfeiffer, seventeen, and John Crosby, sixty-five, both of Frenchtown, N. J., consider fortunate, for it is the day on which the last obstacle to their union was swept away at Hyde Park, where the girl had fled after her father's refusal to permit her to wed her aged suitor. The stern father has relented and with Mary is now on his way to Frenchtown, where Crosby, who has been wired the good news, is awaiting their arrival.

The romance of Mary Pfeiffer and Crosby, who is a widower and wealthy, began when the girl took a position in his home as housekeeper. When she aged employer began to pay attentions to his young housekeeper her father protested. To escape his threat of taking her away from the Crosby home the girl fled, and it was only after a search lasting almost six weeks that her father found her.

Pfeiffer told the Hyde Park police that he had objected to his daughter keeping house for Crosby, but that the girl appeared to be infatuated with her employer. He went to the house on last January 26, he said, but the girl had disappeared and Crosby refused to disclose her whereabouts.

By his own detective work the father says he discovered the girl had been taken to Philadelphia by a woman friend of Crosby's.

He traced her to the home of a former Frenchtown woman in that city, but when the police called there Mary had again disappeared.

Pfeiffer says he finally traced his daughter to the home of her aunt, Mrs. Catherine Pfeiffer on McDonald street, Hyde Park. He went there alone and tried to induce the girl to return home with him.

She refused to go unless her father would consent to her marriage with Crosby. Pfeiffer then called in the Hyde Park police, but the girl persisted in her determination to wed her aged suitor and the father finally gave up his opposition. Father and daughter returned to Frenchtown to-day to arrange plans for the wedding.

THROW STONES AT HAREM SKIRT

WILMINGTON, Del., March 2.—Miss Luis Twigg, a young society leader of Bridgeville, Del., had an unpleasant experience while wearing a divided skirt. Riding through Bridgeville on a horse, she met a crowd of schoolboys. They yelled "Harem skirt," then threw stones at the fair rider. Finally a large stone hit the animal and it began to plunge. The young woman was thrown. She was severely bruised and picked up in a semi-conscious condition.

35 ROADS FOR RATE RULING

CHICAGO, March 2.—Thirty-five Western railroads have decided not to appeal from the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission denying the right to increase freight rates. They will accept the decree of the commission as final. The decision was reached at a meeting of representatives of the roads at the Western Trunk Line Association headquarters here.

MRS. MORRILL 102.

NEWBURYPORT, March 2.—The 102d anniversary of the birth of Mrs. Abigail Farrington Morrill, widow of Jacob Morrill, was quietly celebrated at No. 40 Temple street, where she makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. Abbie M. Oliver.

A Good Shampoo In Cold Weather

(From French Beauty Monthly)

"The true secret of keeping the hair fine, soft and silky is the use of a dry shampoo powder. It is better than washing the head with soap and water and applying hair tonics. Too much moisture ruins the hair—makes it dull, faded and brittle.

"Mix together four ounces of therox and four ounces of orris root and you will have a perfect tonic shampoo powder. Whenever the hair is dusty, or when you want to dress the hair for a special occasion, sprinkle a little of this mixture on the head and brush it thoroughly through the hair.

"This will bring out all dirt, oil and dandruff, cool and refresh the scalp and leave the hair clean, fluffy and lustrous. Therox keeps the hair from thinning and falling, preserves its natural color and encourages its growth."

DOUBLE LEGAL STAMPS MORNINGS

LAKE RULED OUT OF MAYOR RACE

Rocked by the official clock at the Harvard Observatory, Clerk Brandon ruled Former Alderman Charles H. Lake off the track in the Cambridge city election contest, which is scheduled to be run on March 14. Because his own watch was thus two minutes slow, Mr. Lake will not run on nomination papers, as a candidate for Mayor of Cambridge.

Mr. Lake rushed to City Hall. There Clerk Brandon informed him the time for filing the papers had expired two minutes before. An argument arose over the city clerk's timepiece and the Harvard Observatory was called on the telephone to verify the hour and minute. The city clock was found to be correct.

John Ward, an independent candidate for alderman, suffered likewise for lateness and his name will not appear on the ballot.

Mr. Lake said some of the signers on his papers had not written their names in full and in some cases had put their present address instead of the addresses under date of April 1. He thinks maybe he was April fooled.

Rheumatism Advice

Gives Prominent Doctor's Best Prescription—Is Easily Mixed.

"Get one ounce of syrup of Sarsaparilla compound and one ounce of Iris compound. Then get half a pint good whiskey and put the other two ingredients into it. Take a tablespoonful of this mixture before each meal and at bed time. Shake the bottle before using." This is not new in this city as many of the worst cases of rheumatism and backache have been cured by it. Good results come the first day. Any druggist has these ingredients on hand or will quickly get them from his wholesale house. Any one can mix them.

It only will this prescription knock rheumatism in a hurry, but it is a good tonic and soon restores appetite and vitality. Those who have tried it are enthusiastic over the results obtained.

Vesta Victoria Quits the Stage

THEN SHE SHOOK ER BAD LOOKS, AT ME AND SAID, POOR JAWN
I WAS UGGING MYOTHERS USBAND ALL THE TIME.
POOR OLD ADAM WAS ME FATHER.
DON'T GET SORE "VESTA THIS IS BUT THE FIRST NIGHEST OF "IMPRESSIONS".
"VESTA VICTORIA" AS WELL BRIANLEY WOULD NOT DEPICT HER.

ENGLISH COMEDIENNE HAS MADE ENOUGH MONEY TO RETIRE TO PRIVATE LIFE.

Vesta Victoria, often called the greatest singing comedienne, is to retire from the stage. In the words of one of her greatest song hits, "This Is What She Wrote," even if it isn't the very note itself.

The presumption is that Vesta has accumulated sufficient wealth, although she hasn't said so. For years she has been receiving a salary greater than that paid to the President of the United States. The last time she appeared on this side of the water it was stated that she got $2,500 a weekly.

From what the world knew of her, her life must have been one of continual disappointments and sorrow. Her first sorrow voiced to the people on this side of the water was told of the hard-hearted boy who wouldn't buy her a dog. The song was "Buddy Wouldn't Buy Me a Bow Wow!" Next she told of her near-wedding in "There Was I, Waiting at the Church." Every one remembers "John Took Her Round to See His Mother," whereupon that lady remarked, "Poor John, Poor John."

It is safe to say that Vesta's life from now on will be more of a happy one. At least the world won't be kept so fully informed of her disappointments, if there are any.

MRS. BURKHARDT SEEKS DIVORCE

story of how her home was wrecked upon the shoals of infatuation was told to-day on the witness stand by Mrs. Ida S. Burkhardt of Newton, in her suit against Henry O. Burkhardt of divorce. The case was heard to-day in the East Cambridge Court.

Burkhardt is a member of the family that runs the Burkhardt Brewing Company. Henry Burkhardt worked in the brewery and had plenty of opportunity to indulge his appetite.

"I knew he drank before we were married," testified Mrs. Burkhardt, "but he did not drink to excess then. He began to drink hard two or three years after we were married and finally he was sent to Foxboro. I have not seen him since 1906."

Robert Nason, cross-examining Mrs. Burkhardt, asked:

"Didn't your husband sign over all his property to you?"

Lawyer W. C. Cogswell, appearing for the woman, objected to this question, which brought Nason to his feet with this statement:

"I wish to state at this time that I propose to make an application later to have some of the property held by Mrs. Burkhardt returned to her husband. When he comes out of the hospital, where he is, he will be penniless, because he signed all of his shares in the brewery over to his wife."

It was suggested that this action could only be brought after the divorce had been granted and it was decided to go ahead with the evidence.

Mrs. Burkhardt asked for the custody of her son and for alimony. The husband is in a hospital suffering from delirium tremens.

Attorney Nason asked the court to suspend the case to allow his client to prepare a brief on his contentions. Judge Quinn granted the request.

FINED FOR ATTACK

Paul Limbo, of No. 178 Fourth street, South Boston, was to-day fined $10 for assault on Frank Tanovitch, in the South Boston court. The two men work in a rubber factory. They quarrelled and Limbo hit Tanovitch on the head with an iron bar.

WAIFS FIND MOTHER AFTER ELEVEN YEARS

TOLEDO, O., March 2.—Eleven years ago two waifs were picked up by the Wanderers' Home in Boston and were sent to Marion and comfortable homes found for them. Among them were two little boys, Harry and Fred Spencer, aged four and five respectively. A short time ago the foster parents received a letter from a broken-hearted woman, who had lost her children after years of effort through the Boston agency.

She said that since her first husband's death she had married a well-to-do farmer in Massachusetts and wanted her children. The foster parents finally consented to surrender them and to-day they left to join their mother.

KING IS GRATEFUL FOR CHURCH PRAYERS, HE TELLS PRELATE

LONDON, March 2.—Expressing confidence that the prayers of the church will aid him in conducting the affairs of state, King George replied to the convocation addresses of the Archbishop of Canterbury to-day. He said:

"It will always be my endeavor, with God's help, to maintain and consolidate the foundations of public and private virtue, which you labor to preserve and on which the welfare of my people rests. The knowledge that prayers are offered unceasingly by the church in my behalf strengthens me and increases my trust that the Almighty will bestow blessings in the fullest measure in the solemn hour of my coronation and throughout whatever length of years He may be pleased to grant me."

HECLA ORDER IS MODIFIED

The restraining order issued against the Calumet & Hecla Mining Company by Judge Sessa of the United States Circuit Court as a result of the suit filed by holders Brass of Boston seeking to have the proposed merger with Osceola Company declared illegal, does not forbid the Hecla meeting scheduled. This meeting is to be held on the ninth and was called for the purpose of perfecting the plans for the merger.

The suit filed by Hymns asked that the shareholders be enjoined from voting their stock at that meeting. Judge Sessa permits the meeting, but will only allow a vote to determine whether a merger is desirable or not.

The order in part is as follows:

"Ordered that Hecla Consolidated Mining Co. stockholders, officers and directors be, and they are hereby, specially enjoined and restrained from taking any action toward the consolidation of said Osceola Consolidated Mining Co. with the plaintiff & Hecla Mining Co. or any other corporation according to the plan outlined and proposed as shown in the bill of complaint herein, except to permit copy of which is annexed to the bill of complaint, except as herein stated.

BIG STEAMSHIPS MAY COME HERE

The Boston Chamber of Commerce today infused new life into its campaign to make this port the terminal point of the great trans-Atlantic steamship lines, when it was learned that the government had refused to permit 1,000-foot piers in the North River, New York city.

The White Star, Cunard and other lines are even now constructing ships 900 feet long, and the present docking facilities in New York harbor will be inadequate when the ocean leviathans are put into service.

Boston is in a fair way to secure this service, which would be a great boon to shipping and commercial interests in general here. There is no restriction as to length of piers in Boston, and there is one pier already, the Commonwealth, that could accommodate 900-foot craft. That pier is 1,200 feet long, 400 wide, and there is a water depth of 35 feet at mean low water.

Plenty of Room Here.

There is also room on the South Boston side of the harbor for a dozen large piers of similar dimensions.

The trans-Atlantic companies have been for some time discussing Montauk Point, at the extremity of Long Island, as the port of call on this side. They are disappointed at the refusal of the Board of Army Engineers to approve their plans for longer piers in the North River. The board reported adversely yesterday to the Secretary of War.

In addition to Boston and Montauk, New London harbor has also been suggested, but this scheme seems hardly practicable, as New London is a resort place, so far as metropolitan business is concerned. Travelers going from the West to take a steamship at New London would be compelled to transfer either at New York or Boston, which would mean additional railroad rate, and New London is not of sufficient size to accommodate the business involved. Boston business men to-day said that they did not favor this proposal seriously, and that they believed Boston had an excellent chance to win out.

New York Is Disappointed.

Here is what G. P. Sumner of New York, general manager of Cunard interests in America, has to say of the situation: "Boston will do anything we ask to get us to come there, and there are railroad interests which are desirous that Montauk Point on Long Island be selected, but I believe that New London, Ct., offers the best harbor. The railroad facilities there are first-class and it is near both Boston and New York.

"Advices from New York say that Calvin Tompkins, Commissioner of Docks and Ferries in the metropolis, as well as the New York agents of all the steamship lines, are greatly disappointed by the decision of the Harbor Line Board.

RECIPE FOR WEAK KIDNEYS

Kidney or bladder trouble are shown by such symptoms as back-ache, rheumatic pains and other well known signs. Treatment should be given at once before more serious trouble arises. The following simple prescription is from leading authority and is highly endorsed. Mix one half ounce fluid extract buchu, one half ounce sarsa compound, six ounces good pure gin. Take one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bed time. All well stocked drug stores have the above ingredients. Anyone can mix. This quickly restores weak deranged kidneys, bladder and other urinary organs.

GEN. CARRINGTON IS 87 TO-DAY

In the best of health and "as young as ever," as he puts it, Brigadier General Henry Beecher Carrington (retired) today celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday. Owing to the health of Mrs. Carrington there was no formal observance of the anniversary, but the noted old Indian fighter and Civil War veteran enjoyed it quietly at his home in Hyde Park. This is General Carrington's birthday message through the AMERICAN to his many thousands of countrymen, friends and acquaintances:

"I am in the best of health on my eighty-seventh birthday and as young as ever. I have received a great number of congratulations by mail and wire from various parts of the country, among them one from Senator Lodge, another from Senator Warner of Wyoming, and others from prominent men. I am the only surviving officer who was under General Winfield Scott before he retired soon after the outbreak of the Civil War.

Washington Reminiscences.

"It has been said in some newspapers that it was not known where General Washington stopped in Wallingford, Ct., in 1789, on his visit to Boston, but it was in my grandfather's house. The dwelling was always spoken of in Wallingford as Washington's house. When it was destroyed by fire my grandfather saved the key and gave it to me. On General Washington's departure he gave my grandmother a letter of thanks, which I have. For myself and for the nation I see nothing to despair of. As an old boy might say, 'we are still going strong.'"

General Carrington had a long career in the army. He was born in Wallingford, studied law in Yale and practiced in Columbus, O., where he helped organize the Republican party. He was adjutant general of Ohio when the Civil War broke out and rendered great service to the Union cause by his prompt work in mobilizing and sending the militia and volunteer regiments to the front.

Sent Out 120,000 Volunteers.

He was appointed colonel of the Eighteenth U. S. Infantry on May 14, 1861, and made a brigadier-general of volunteers in 1862. As commander of the military district of Indiana he organized and sent to the front 130,000 volunteers from that State.

After the Civil War General Carrington was continued in the regular establishment as commander of the Eighteenth Infantry, and with part of his command opened the first wagon route to Montana through Wyoming, and after many encounters with hostile Indians built Fort Phillip Kearney, soon afterward the scene of the Fetterman massacre, in which Lieutenant Colonel Fetterman, Captain W. H. Brown, Lieutenant George W. Grummond and seventy-eight enlisted men were killed.

Mrs. Carrington next fought the Sioux and was severely wounded in one action. He commanded several army posts and was detailed as military instructor in Wabash College. He was retired on account of disability in 1870, and since has led a busy literary career, being the author of several valuable works on the Civil and Indian wars.

His wife was the widow of Lieutenant Grummond, who was killed in the Fetterman massacre.

SIAM FLATTERED AT U. S. COURTESY

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The Secretary of State of Siam called the State Department to-day that his government is greatly honored by the announcement that the American minister at Bangkok, Hamilton King, is designated as President Taft's special representative at the coronation of the remains of King Chulalongkorn, who died October 23. The cable further states that his majesty, King Sondeetch Chos Fa Maha Vajiravudh, is very much touched by this courtesy and that everything will be done to afford Minister King a most favorable reception.

FANS CAN'T PLAY BALL, SAYS LEE

Here's an awful rout on the baseball fans, right at the early Spring season, too. Joseph Lee, president of the Playground Association of America, says the fans can't play the game themselves.

It was at the annual conference of the Massachusetts Civic League at No. 3 Joy street to-day that Mr. Lee put over this "three strikes and out" on the fans. He was speaking of the supremacy of the ancient Greeks in athletics.

"To-day," he said, "the pathetic interest which we take in sports and physical development is outdowned by the eagerness with which the public swallowed the fourth-hand information regarding the Jeffries-Johnson fight and the bowls of delirium which arise from the spectators at a ball game when a man muffs a ball.

"The chances are that a vast majority of the spectators who shout 'Oh, Rotten! couldn't play ball on the second team of a girls' grammar school."

Ernest Hermann, superintendent of Cambridge playgrounds, spoke on "Playgrounds for Children Under Ten." He said in part:

"For children under ten the playground is not only a place for sunshine and pure air, not only a school for their characters and civic virtues, but a nursery for capable mentality. To make the playgrounds really effective I urge that up to the age of seven our children be kept on the playgrounds throughout the entire year. From seven to ten years half a day at school and the other half on the playgrounds.

"The playgrounds of the future should be in the hands of special boards elected by the people, and their support should be fixed by law in the same manner as our schools now are."

MARGARET WARD.

GIRL SAVES MAN, FAINTS AT FIRE

Collapsing after she had proved herself a heroine by awakening Augustine Wright, a lodger in her home, in time to prevent him from being overcome by smoke, Miss Margaret Ward, 22, was overcome herself and narrowly escaped death in a fire in the lodging house conducted by her aunt, Mrs. Mary Ward, at No. 311 Columbus avenue early to-day.

Miss Ward occupies a rear room on the fourth floor of the house. She was awakened by the smell of smoke and her first thought was for Wright, who is old and feeble. She forced her way through the smoke filled hall leading to his room on the same floor and aroused him. When she saw him making his way down the stairs, she went back to her room to dress, but fainted as she stepped inside and fell to the floor.

Meanwhile Jean McGaren, the janitor, had discovered the fire and aroused the other occupants of the house. In absence of Miss Ward had been noted and Patrolman Martin Cosgrove made his way through the smoke to the girl's room. He found her unconscious on the floor and carried her to the street. She was quickly revived.

The fire, which started in a small trunk room on the fourth floor from a cause not discovered, caused a damage of about $500.

TAFT WISHES TEST WALKERS NO BLISTERS

WASHINGTON, March 2.—"May you have no blisters." This is the sentiment that President Taft wrote in the log book of two young New York soldiers, members of the National Guard, who are tramping from New York to San Francisco to demonstrate that a new form of knapsack which they carry is easier than the new one now used by the army.

MARGARET WARD, WHO WAS RESCUED IN BURNING HOME

DECLARES BIBLE UNFIT FOR MAIL

James B. Stillman, a lawyer, living at No. 66 Waltham street, has protested to United States Attorney French and District Attorney Pelletier against further mailing of the Bible on the ground that the book is an unfit publication for the privileges. At Mr. French's office, Mr. Stillman was referred to Assistant United States Attorney Ferber, a Hebrew scholar.

"Do you regard the Bible as a proper subject for the mailing privilege?" asked Mr. Stillman.

"Why, yes, I should say so," responded Mr. Ferber. "Of course the question has not been raised heretofore," he added with legal caution.

"Do you know this book?" demanded the visitor sternly. "Oh, yes; oh, yes," said the Assistant Attorney.

"Then you must be a member of the Y. M. C. A., or some such lay school," said Mr. Stillman. He further expressed dissatisfaction at not being able to present his complaint to Mr. French and left a copy of the Bible with the request that it be presented to Mr. French.

"I do not wish to have this important matter passed upon by a subordinate," he said.

Mr. Stillman visited District Attorney Pelletier on the same mission. He had with him extracts from the Massachusetts statutes bearing upon the circulation of or having in his possession, books calculated to injure the morals of youth. Mr. Pelletier referred him to the United States Attorney.

Mr. Stillman takes exceptions to various sections of Genesis, Deuteronomy, St. Paul's Epistle to the Corinthians, St. Luke and St. Peter's Epistle to the Romans.

BAN ON TREATING IN SALOON IN DELAWARE

DOVER, Del., March 2.—There will be no treating in saloons in Delaware. The House of Representatives placed a taboo on this practice by passing an anti-treating bill. It will also, it is expected, go through the Senate. The anti-treating bill was passed, 18 to 12, a bare majority.

SAYS AMERICA'S DEFEAT IS NEAR

PORTAGE, LaPRAIRIE, Man., March 2.—In an interview here Sir Frederick Villiers, the distinguished war correspondent and artist of the London Graphic, said:

"Unless the United States drops its spirit of bravado and recognizes that it is a nation of imperfection, having for its defence an army and navy wholly untrained and unfit for a war with any great power, an exchequer incapable of standing the drain that a war would involve, and a misguided people who understand that the aim of the republic is money making, I foresee that republic's downfall.

"Today if Japan attacked our neighbors to the South, there could be but one outcome, certain, quick and absolute defeat. The time is not far distant when the United States will have a terrible awaken ing."

LITTLE GIRL IS SCHOOL MAYOR

Mayor at the age of eight! That is the honor which has been in little Ruth Pierce of No. 6 Revere place, who received the unanimous vote of the entire third grade of the Sharp School for that office. City government has been organized in various Boston schools, by Frederick Gill, representing the Patriotic League of Philadelphia, and to Ruth Pierce has fallen the responsibility and dignity of the first majority in her class.

"What would you do if a bad boy threw snow-balls and misbehaved generally? This was the first problem which perplexed Mayor Pierce.

"One boy is a awful bad boy," Ruth confessed, "he fights with all the other boys 'fittier a him, and he makes faces when teacher ain' lookin'. So I complained to the judge—we have two judges, a boy and a girl, and they punished him."

"Is the punishment very bad?"

"M'm, awful bad sometimes. If he's just a little bad we keeps him in after school, and if he's badder then we rathands him with a ruler."

"Well, suppose he won't let you rattan him, what do you do then?"

"Oh, he has ter let us, because teacher makes him."

Some of the other problems that confront this youthful officeholder are matters of health and hygiene. The health inspectors, aged seven and eight years, look at the teeth, hair and finger nails of their fellow-classmates, and report if an insufficient amount of lime or soap has been expended.

"I'm goin' to be mayor for a month and then another girl is goin' to be elected."

Miss Pierce seemed assured that it would be one of her pet boys that would be in command, for as she expressed it:

"The boys is good for policemen, but they ain't so good for mayor."

$10,000,000 IN MILL MERGER

One million dollars has been subscribed already by Boston capitalists for a proposed merger of nine big cotton mill industries, all valued at $10,000,000, to be known under the consolidation as the Parker Mills Company. This will be the third largest concern of its kind in the world, being exceeded in number of spindles only by the Amoskeag corporation of Manchester, N. H., and the New England Cotton Yarn Company.

The mills, which it is proposed to merge, are all located in South Carolina. Among the subscribing Boston bankers are Robert F. Herrick, Thomas Motley of the Curtis & Sanger banking firm and R. F. Sheffield of the Saco-Pettee Company. They are expected to become members of the board of directors of the corporation.

Louis W. Parker of Greenville, S. C., for years regarded the chief competitor in the South against the New England cotton companies, is slated to be president of the corporation. He was a pioneer in cotton manufacture in the South.

Since he owns a large number of shares, not a controlling interest, however, in each of the mills, Colonel Mills is stated to say Mr. Motley that the consolidation is practically certain to go into effect.

Ex-Governor Draper is one of the principal stockholders in five of the mills to be included in the consolidation. He has not subscribed to the guaranteed stock.

The Old Colony Trust Company has a department for the deposit of the shares of the separate mills in exchange for those of the consolidated company.

JEWS OPPOSE S. P. C. A. BILL

Jacob deHass, editor of the Jewish Advocate, heads a delegation of more than 100 prominent Jews, which protests today at the State House against the passage of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals bill prohibiting the Jewish method of slaughtering animals.

The bill provides that butchers shall first stun by a blow all animals about to be slaughtered and forbids the casting of the animal as a preliminary to slaughter.

The bill is aimed directly at the Jewish race, said Mr. deHass. "It is a blow at our liberties, and seeks to remove the regulations which has preserved us through 2,000 year existence in cities. We will make plain to the Legislature how strongly we feel about the matter."

Such a safe in saying that the Jews of Massachusetts have never before been so stirred up. They are about this bill.

Six slaughter houses in Brighton and Somerville supply the 90,000 Jewish people of Boston each week with parts of just animals slaughtered according to Mosaical law, which requires the animal to be bled to death by a single knife stroke, which shall sever the main arteries of the neck.

WARMEST FEBRUARY IN FORTY-ONE YEARS

The month just ended was the warmest February since the weather bureau began to keep its records forty-one years ago. The mean temperature was 34.4. The nearest approach to this was in 1871, when the mean temperature was 34. Last year it was 29. Nineteen and a half inches of snow fell and 2.85 inches of rain.

SOCIETY AIDS CRIPPLES' FAIR

Scores of Boston's most prominent society women to-day took up the role of salesgirl at the annual fair of the Home for Destitute Crippled Children in the large ballroom of the Hotel Somerset. For hours they stood behind counters and with in decorated booths exercising their powers of salesmanship upon hundreds of their own set who were in attendance.

The fair is held to-day and to-morrow. The hours are from 10 o'clock to 6 to-day. To-morrow the fair closes at noon. The opening was a great success and the large ballroom of the Somerset was crowded with people.

The feature of the fair was the huge flower booth in the centre of the room. The flowers were donated by the florists of the city. E. Pierson Hemis, treasurer of the home, gave a large number of the flowers. The fair was in charge of Mrs. Robert S. Bradley.

Big Crowd in Attendance.

One of the tables that attracted a large throng during the first hours following the opening was the fancy work table. Mrs. Stephen Bennett and Mrs. H. S. Whitwell were in charge of this table. Assisting them were Mrs. Curtis Guild and Mrs. A. Henry Higginson (Jeanne Calduch).

Two of the features during the afternoon were a bridge tournament and the cutting of silhouettes. H. H. Ward, the famous bridge player, donated his services for the tournament. Miss Faith Simpkins cut scores of silhouettes for her many society friends.

The flower booth was in charge of Mrs. Phillip Parker. She was assisted by dozens of more women during the day. Mrs. Prescott Bigelow presided over the candy table. The household table is in a large business under the direction of Mrs. H. B. Long.

Exhibition of Work Done.

Some of the other tables were the cake table, in charge of Mrs. Wallace Goodrich; tea apron table, in charge of Mrs. Dudley Pickman; the table, in charge of Mrs. Randolph Tucker, and the toy table, in charge of Mrs. Asa Anthony.

Miss Perry, one of the teachers at the Industrial school, conducted in connection with the home, had an exhibition of the work done by the cripples who attended the school.

Priest's Advice Led to Their Recovery

Thin, weak or frail people—those who "take cold easily" and sufferers of Bronchitis and Asthma, should be prepared with Eckman's Alterative in the house. Remarkable cures of even Tuberculous (Consumptive) persons are often accomplished. Here are two cases to prove it:

"Gentlemen: On June 3, 1907, I was operated upon for Tubercular Peritonitis at St. Mary's Hospital, Rochester, Minn. After the operation my physicians gave me up. I was then urged by a priest to take Eckman's Alterative, which I did. My weight at the time was 72 lbs. I began to improve and steadily gained in health and strength. I now weigh 128 lbs. and am absolutely cured.

(Signed Affidavit) "EFNA FINZER"

90 Savannah St., Rochester, N. Y.

"Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma and Bronchitis for seventeen years. I tried many remedies, Eckman's Alterative is recommended to me by our Parish Priest. I am now feeling fine. I cannot praise it too highly."

(Signed Affidavit) "ANNA MAE MENTEE," Larue, Ky.

Eckman's Alterative clears Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Affections. For all Rite-Aid-James Stores, Houghton & Dutton's Drug and other leading druggists. Send booklet of cured cases and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence.

NEW ACTING MAYOR COLLINS 'EARLY BIRD'

AMERICAN snapshot of acting Mayor Walter L. Collins, at his desk in City Hall.

Is at His Desk Before Office Force Gets Down to Work.

Walter L. Collins, acting Mayor of Boston and new head of the City Council, is an early bird. Before the staff of the Mayor's office arrived for duty this morning the new acting Mayor was on the job.

The office was deserted when he arrived but a few minutes after 9 o'clock Colonel Field arrived and with him a big bouquet of flowers that his chief at Palm Beach had ordered by wire for the adornment of the desk of his substitute.

A few minutes later "Eddie" Moore, the Hub's genial, portly and well-known old administration cigar and the acting Mayor was officially installed in office. His first official act as Mayor was the signing of a number of bonds that were required in "John Hancock" before becoming negotiable.

Mr. Collins received a number of congratulatory telegrams, one of the first which he read being from Mayor Fitzgerald.

"Congratulations and success to your administration," said the wire from the absent chief executive. Mayor Fitzgerald and the acting Mayor have not been the best of friends politically, but officially they will see much of each other from now on, and their relations will undoubtedly be pleasant.

"I haven't formulated any policies yet," said the acting Mayor in response to a query. "My duties are somewhat limited, but I shall endeavor to dispatch them to the best of my ability."

Mr. Collins is the first chief executive to come from Ward 22. Mayor Collins lived in that ward for a time before he was Mayor, but after his election moved to Brighton.

The new Mayor was showered with congratulations from personal friends and was busy for some time receiving those who called to congratulate him upon his election to the presidency of the City Council.

BALFOUR FIGHTS THE VETO BILL

LONDON, March 2.—A. J. Balfour, leader of the opposition in the House of Commons, renewed his battle in the Commons to-day against the veto bill, declaring that if the government measure were allowed to become a law, England would lose its democratic form of government.

"A democratic form of government is absolutely the only form for a community of free men," said he, "but if it is to make a broad appeal against the constitution of the House of Peers."

Mr. Balfour spoke in similar strain to his anti-section addresses when he said that the upper house ought to be continued with its present power because it is needed as a "brake" upon hasty legislation.

4 MONTHS FOR NEGLECT.

William F. Sheehan, of No. 208 Eldredge street, South Boston, was to-day sentenced to four months in the House of Correction for failing to support his wife and four children. Judge Fitch imposed sentence in the South Boston police court. Sheehan appealed and was held in $100.

LODGE KINSMAN MAY RECOVER

Ernest W. Litch, a relative of Senator Lodge by marriage, who drank wood alcohol in the office of John G. Hall & Co., commission merchants at No. 114 State street, is in an improved condition at the Relief Hospital. Mrs. Litch stated, at her home at No. 762 Huntington avenue, Roxbury, to-day, that Litch after his efforts to swallow the alcohol with the intention of committing suicide, Dec. 15, left her for several months ago Mr. Litch's mother died. She told how Litch's father was a North Carolina man.

Half a "Tar Heel."

He is proud of the fact that he was born in Virginia. But his father was a North Carolina man.

"I am more than half a tar heel" he said this morning. "The Southern papers of both Norfolk and Suffolk, where I am well known, have been very friendly in their attitude towards my appointment. You know it was announced last Saturday. Not long ago I was in North Carolina with Mr. Washington. Our audience was more than half white. I said then that I was hopeful that the friction between the races must decline, that blacks and whites were to old North Carolina as just have to get along somehow and I believe it would be in Christian fortbearance and by mutual concessions. That sentiment was cordially applauded by every white man in the audience."

Mr. Lewis said that he felt he should say nothing at all on the race question; that he is a lawyer who all his life has been taught the value of facts rather than dreams and diction, and knowing that race prejudice exists, is a stern reality, he felt that it is a good subject to let alone, especially now when he finds himself in the spotlight for a little while.

In Washington Mr. Lewis will make no effort to achieve social equality. To him it is a shadow for himself and his people. He believes the time has come for them to seize the substance, and if further achievements come, well and good.

HUSBAND AND WIFE DIE 24 HOURS APART

Osborn D. Harrington and his wife, Elizabeth C., died within twenty-four hours of each other at their home in Wellesley. They are to be buried side by side to-day. Wellesley services to-morrow afternoon after a private funeral at the home. Mrs. Harrington had always been a resident of the town. Her husband was born in Weston and lived in Wellesley since the couple were married. Both were 72 years old.

FATHER DRAGHETTI HERE NEXT WEEK

The distinguished Italian Franciscan, the Rev. Michelangelo Draghetti, O. F. M., one of the most eloquent preachers heard in this country for years, is expected in this city next week, after an absence of almost two years. He once delivered a series of sermons at the Church of St. Leonard of Port Maurice on Prince street. Father Draghetti will be remembered for the eloquent discourses he preached at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross on the occasion of the invitation of Archbishop O'Connell, about two years ago.

LEWIS' SUCCESS INSPIRES RACE

A dispatch from Washington describes the opposition which it is said the appointment of William H. Lewis, of Boston, as an assistant attorney general has inclined.

The reason given is that he is a negro. He is. Lewis is a negro. Not a black negro, but more of the mulatto type. His father was half white, his grandfather an Englishman named Foshall. His mother was more white than his father. Both were octoroons. He doesn't care much for equality, knowing racial prejudice exists.

It is declared, it is not the racial whiteness of Lewis, however, that has made him what he is or that he is at any rate backness that is to him which will justify any sentiment against his appointment.

Lewis has racially is a negro. Morally, in character, in ideals, in address, in speech, in modesty, in absolute lack of that ostentation some associate with the successful, black or white, man suddenly lifted out of the depths, William H. Lewis is as white as any man.

"The salvation of my race is in that very word," he said this morning when asked to tell his story. "The negro's future is one of salvation, not one of roadsman. Alone will not help it. Nor will that directed at him or by him. This I got from one of the best friends I ever had. That was President Seeley of Amherst, where I got my academic education. It is true."

Teddy Roosevelt Smile.

Lewis has the most pleasing, deep-toned voice with not the faintest suggestion of negro in it. His great big eyes are set almost abnormally far apart. He has perfect teeth and almost a Teddy Roosevelt smile. It would be hard to believe him any but a cultured, educated white man should he hear him speaking in another room.

"There is a race problem. I know it. The wisest of my people know it," said Mr. Lewis. "I'm no less radical than some of my people. But I have been more fortunate, perhaps. My lines have fallen in more pleasant places.

"I believe that the problem of the negro, white and black, is far more an economic problem than a social one. I believe with Booker Washington, one of my best friends, that when the negro proves that he is a useful member of his community, owns some land, saves his money and has a bank account—achieves economic freedom—that we will begin to get of social equality.

"My people were slaves. My father fought through the war—ran away from his master. He became a clergyman and was respected in our home city of Norfolk. I worked my way through Harvard, playing centre rush on two varsity teams and coached the team for one or two years.

Struggle for Education.

"I waited on table, was janitor, took care of horses, did everything to get my education. Personally I have never known a race problem. I believe I have been appointed because the President thinks my training will be of service to him. That is what I mean to try to do that work in Washington as I have done for seven years in the District Attorney's office."

Mr. Lewis's former appointment as the opening of the door of opportunity to your race or more a recognition of the negro's progress and a step forward in solving the ills of character or education?

"I believe my present appointment will prove an inspiration to my race, and to that end it is a step forward in the solution of the race problem. But even more important, it is a recognition of the negro's progress. There are a large number of young people of my race who are pushing forward and hopefully they will find encouraged. I think, however, that we are far removed yet from a solution of the problem of racial distinction, all other things being equal, and that if the white man and the negro are equal the white man has the advantage."

Mr. Lewis is forty-two years old, has served in the Cambridge Council, in the Massachusetts senate, and was assistant district attorney of this county's public library. He is married and has three children and lives in comfortable home in a high class white section of Cambridge.

All his life he has been thrown in with white people and as one who came North when only a negro boy of slave parents naturally been more or less moulded into the white family ways was his own, personally fortunate environment.

WOMAN LEAVES $21,000 TO CHARITY

With the exception of a $5,000 bequest to her brother, the entire estate of the late Mrs. Lucy M. Dennis of Lowell, valued at $26,000, is left to charitable and religious institutions, according to her will, filed in the Probate Court, East Cambridge. The valuation of the property, according to the assessors, is $11,600, on which $10,000 is on the 10,224 square feet of land. It is expected that the occupant will soon vacate and the frontier part of the land will be added to the college campus.

NEW YORK, March 2.—John Mitchell, former head of the United Mine Workers of America, and latterly chairman of the Trade Agreement Department of the National Civic Federation, has made public the resignation of his office and membership in the latter organization. President Seth Low of the Civic Federation has accepted the resignation.

LEARY REPORTS ON NURSE CASE

Medical Examiner Timothy J. Leary today made a written report to District Attorney Pelletier on the deaths of Miss Mary J. Lockwood and Amelia de Forrest Lockwood, attended by Miss Amelia M. Leonard, the trained nurse now under arrest for stealing various articles from the former woman valued at more than $6,000.

Dr. Leary went over the cases carefully to see if there was any indication that either of the women had died from the result of poison. He reported to the district attorney that both women died from natural causes, and that there was not the slightest reason to suspect that they were he victims of poison.

As a result of this report neither of the bodies will be exhumed and the investigation of the history of the nurse of mystery will continue no further so far as the deaths of the nurse's patients are concerned.

More Arrests Expected.

It was said to-day that more arrests might be made in connection with the nurse's thefts.

A second trunk that Miss Leonard had placed in storage, it was learned to-day, had been located. It is believed that this trunk contains property looted from the homes of wealthy patients whom Miss Leonard attended. The trunk has not been opened yet. The trunk is in the possession of the Wood-Morgan detective agency. It will be opened when Mr. Morgan returns to Boston from a trip out of town on the same matter.

The articles found in the first trunk were many of them identified as the property of Miss Mary L. Pecker, who died last July at Woodstock, Vt., and of Miss Mary J. Lockwood, who died in the Hotel Brunswick in February. Both were attended by Miss Leonard.

Medical Examiner Leary does not say that the case has been dropped completely. "There will be nothing unless something more tangible than presumption can be found against the perfectly natural symptoms of death," he added.

All of the physicians who attended Miss Lockwood were questioned by Dr. Leary. They are Dr. Farrar Cobb, the physician in charge, and Drs. William Smith, Richard Smith, Elbridge G. Cutler and George Badger. They all agreed that her death was from natural causes.

A new element was injected into the case to-day by the friends of the accused nurse, who declared that she had told them that she was giving money to a young man she had engaged to marry. She told the name of the young man.

Hunt Missing Articles.

Colonel William A. Gaston, whose wife is a niece of one of the dead women, has employed the Wood-Morgan detective agency to locate the missing articles and reveal the methods of the detectives have. It is reported, made some of the relatives indignant. To-day the authorities probe the case further, although other relatives declare their confidence in the accused nurse.

Colonel Gaston, in discussing the case to-day, made this statement:

"So far as I can learn there was nothing suspicious about the death of Miss Lockwood. She was a very old woman, her body should be exhumed. Miss Leonard, I understand, was a very good nurse, an ordinary thief. She even went so far as to steal postage stamps. I suppose, as far as her peculiarities went. I can't."

REPORT MEAT PRICES LOWER

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 2.—An increase of 14 per cent. in the supply of live stock received at Western markets last month as compared with the figures for February, 1910, tells a story of a remarkable decline in the wholesale prices. A year ago an acute shortage developed which affected the entire country. The hogs and sheep during March up to the highest prices in a generation. The top quotation for Live Stock Exchange cattle in March, 1910, were $10.55 100 pounds for bulls, $10.25 for cows and $10.25 for lambs. Yesterday's prices were about $4 lower for sheep and lambs.

PASTOR DISCLOSES SECRET MARRIAGE

NORWICH, Ct., March 2.—The secret marriage on February 11 of George Edward Turner of Greenville to Miss Gertrude Fletcher of Cambridge, Mass., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Charles Fletcher, was made known to-day. The announcement was made to the register of vital statistics by the officiating clergyman, the Rev. J. John Bohanan of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church.

MRS. DARLING, 49, WHO IS BRIDE OF BANK CLERK OF 21

MRS. A. O. DARLING

BRIDE'S CATS GO TO GROOM

Alfred D. Darling, twenty-one years old, whose marriage Tuesday to Miss Nan Dove Plumer, forty-nine years old, of Lexington, is still being talked about, is busying himself caring for twelve cats and one dog, in which property he acquired a joint guardianship when he took his bride, while he waits for his father's blessing.

The marriage took place at the home of the bride, No. 377 Massachusetts avenue, Lexington. It was performed by the Rev. George Grey Butlard, pastor of the Church of Our Redeemer, Lexington. The only persons present were Mrs. Emily Plumer, the bride's mother, and Miss Margaret Plumer, a sister.

The cats and dog mentioned are the pets of the bride. She is employed as an artist in a Boston studio. She is the great-granddaughter of William Plumer, one time Governor of New Hampshire and afterward United States Senator from that State.

Mrs. Darling had to give the facts to the Town Clerk in her home town. She told her age—forty-nine years. She told age of her bridegroom, one or less known to the town official. The couple then went to her home and the ceremony was performed beneath a great oil painting of the former New Hampshire statesman.

Mrs. Darling frankly states that she doesn't understand why her husband married her—"a gray-haired old woman like me."

"I expect that there will be plenty of comment," she told a reporter, "but we are prepared for it. I believe, however, that we can both be very happy in spite of it."

Darling is the son of Harry Darling, who is numbered in a Boston banking institution. His son says he lives in Connecticut. "Pitch him and you'll be doing something," he said to a reporter. "If he knew that I told you where he lived he'd certainly give me a licking."

500 BURNED TO DEATH IN CHINA

VICTORIA, B. C., March 2.—Five hundred famine refugees were burned to death after being surrounded in the compound of the Chinese village of Kansiano, about fifty miles from Shanghai, by Chinese bandits, according to reports by passengers on board the Pacific liner Tamba Maru, which arrived to-day.

Rendered desperate by hunger, residents of the famine district in Southern China are committing the most bloodthirsty depredation in their riots for food, the passengers of the ship stated.

The refugees came into conflict with a band of Chinese bandits who were spreading terror throughout the region and were driven into the compound. Then the torch was applied.

STILL ALARM IN $500 FIRE.

Thirty-five men and women were thrown out of employment by a fire on the third floor of the five-story brick building, No. 432 Harrison avenue, occupied by Alec Szymkiech, a cap maker. A still alarm brought out Engine 31 and the blaze was extinguished with a loss of $500. The cause is not known.

Is assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and these are attested under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests and while potent to cure are perfectly harmless—even to the most delicate women and children.

Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition. A much better agent is used both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles in them, viz.—pure triple-refined glycerine. This agent possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable antiseptic and antiferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heart-burn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or other organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures even the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hang-on-coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Discovery" is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate, chronic coughs, which, if neglected or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

To find out more about the above mentioned diseases and all about the body in health and disease, get the Common Sense Medical Adviser—the People's Schoolmaster in Medicine—revised and up-to-date book of 1000 pages—which treats of diseased conditions and the practical, successful treatment thereof. TOWNS ABUSE TRUST FUNDS

Bad financiering and misuse of trust funds by fifteen of the thirty-three cities and fifty-eight of the one hundred and fifty-six towns whose books have been examined by Director Getlemy of the Bureau of Statistics, is revealed, and Mr. Getlemy urges action by the Legislature to relieve these cities and towns of a perpetual debt burden of $1,124,000, which they have placed on themselves. No provision has been made, Director Getlemy says, for the payment of these debts by sinking fund or otherwise, and the interest charges constitute a perpetual burden on the tax payers.

Mr. Getlemy cites, Cohasset, Sudbury and New Bedford as horrible examples. Cohasset's debts of this character amount to $63,459.84, of which $7,679.84 represents the principal of two library trust funds received in 1904 and used, on which the town is paying 4 per cent. interest.

"One of the most popular forms of borrowing by our municipalities from time immemorial has been to take the principal of trust funds left by generous benefactors, turn it into the common treasury and use it for any most convenient, contemporary municipal purpose, quite regardless of the wishes, expressed or implied, of the donor," says Mr. Getlemy.

"Was it not intended by Sylvia And Howland when she left to the city of New Bedford $100,000, the income of which was to be used for the benefit of the schools and the library, that the tax-payers of the city should be relieved by the amount of the earnings of this fund from taxation? But when the city took this money and spent it for other purposes, agreeing to pay toward the worthy objects of the fund 6 per cent on the amount annually, while it paid a generous rate, it placed a permanent burden on the tax-payers.

"Thus, by the method which was adopted of handling this transaction, the city finds itself at the end of forty years out of pocket $240,000 for interest charges and with a $100,000 debt still on its hands, on which it is honor bound to continue to pay interest charges at 6 per cent., or $6,000 annually, forever, from taxation, unless provision be made to cancel the obligation.

HEARST WINS FOR DEMOCRATS

NEW YORK, March 2.—The nomination of Carter H. Harrison for Mayor of Chicago on a platform calling for the strict regulation of gas, telephone and other utility corporations which have taken millions from the people's pockets by charging exorbitonate rates, was a notable victory for William Randolph Hearst and his Chicago newspapers.

Mr. Harrison's opponents, Edward F. Dunne, a former Mayor, and Andrew J. Graham, the banker candidate put up by Roger Sullivan, national Democratic Committeeman for Illinois, claimed that the movement for Harrison, if successful, would start a boom in Illinois for the nomination of Mr. Hearst for President in 1912.

They asserted that with Harrison in the Mayor's chair, the Democratic city and county, controlling one-half the delegates in the State convention, would be able to capture most, if not all, of the delegates to the National convention next year, and that the Hearst sentiment this aroused in the central city of the country would spread throughout other States of the Middle West.

$500,000 Barrel Opened.

Wishing to be in a position to control the Illinois delegation to the Presidential convention, Sullivan, who has been the "boss" of the Chicago Democracy for a decade, made a desperate fight against Harrison and the Hearst papers, the Chicago Examiner and the Chicago American. He had a special candidate of his own, Mr. Graham, who had been interested with him in public utility enterprises. He raised an enormous campaign barrel, estimated at $500,000, to aid Graham at the Mayoralty primary. He was accused of playing to use this fund to "buy the Mayoralty for one of his puppets.

The polls were flooded with corporation money. Many men received $2 to $10 each for their votes.

It was charged by the Chicago Examiner and the Chicago American that Sullivan, who is financially interested in the local street railroad, aided to make Graham Mayor in order that the power of the office might be used to prevent the passage of a city ordinance reducing the price of gas from 85 cents to 70 cents per 1,000 feet.

Political "Trade" Exposed.

From the start the Sullivan-Graham cause was doomed, but the "Boss" thought he could carry the election with his record-breaking "barrel."

Twenty-four hours before the polls he made a secret "trade" with Dunne. With the "Boss" it was anything to beat Hearst, the candidate supported by the Hearst newspapers.

The trade was discovered in the nick of time and exposed by the Hearst newspapers with the result that the Sullivan-Graham machine was badly beaten, failing to elect either its own candidate or Dunne, the dark horse.

Members of the Sullivan clique are going to Dunne to contest the primary election of 1912 as an Independent, if the task is not taken seriously. The five Republican candidates have declared that the open primary, held under the direction of County Judge J. E. Owens, a fearless and incorruptible official, was an unqualified success and absolutely fair.

NEW PLAYS FOR COMING WEEK

Slang is not always easy to understand, even by those who profess to be adepts at it. Which is why many inquiries have been made regarding the exact meaning of Harry Bavenport's line, "I'm like the 'Benny' and the 'Soup and Fish'" in "The Commuters" at the Park Theatre. Perhaps the line should be explained. The word "Benny" means an overcoat, and is a contraction of the word Benjamin, the name of a clothing firm in New York. The term "Soup and Fish" refers to evening dress, which is expected at a course dinner such as the actor had attended just before uttering into the social troubles that make the play interesting.

Nearly every one who sees "The Fourth Estate" at the Shubert is puzzled to know the real significance of one of the characters in the composing room scene who is simply designated on the program as a "Two Thirder." The "Two Thirder" is almost unknown to-day among newspaper compositors, but any old-timer will recognize the name. In the old days compositors were appointed for three years and one who served two years of that time was known as a "two thirder." Presumably the person still retains the title. Chicago Tribune, the part owner of which is Joseph Medill Patterson, who wrote "The Fourth Estate."

The remarkable run of "Madame X" at the Majestic Theatre will terminate with the performance of Saturday evening. Mr. Savage will then send the play on a two years' tour of New England cities.

Although Margaret Anglin, who comes to the Tremont next week in "Green Stockings," declares that she is in any way superstitious, she has the utmost faith in a certain Egyptian scarab ring that she has worn constantly on the left finger since it was placed there, and wished on, by a member of a party who visited the Nile two years ago. No one can induce her to pry it from its bridge, and in the guarded moments she has been known to confide in it a great deal of the good fortune that has come to her since the ring came into her possession.

The sale of seats for "The Lottery Man," the week's attraction at the Majestic Theatre, will open to-day. "The Lottery Man" is a farce, written by Rida Johnson Young, and played by a company headed by Cyril Scott.

There is always a pronounced interest in the plays that bring Miss Billie Burke to Boston, and her appearance at the Hollis next week will doubtless be followed by the usual prosperity that clings to her productions. Miss Burke will be seen in "Suzanne," a comedy of Belgian life. She will also give a one-act piece, "The Philosopher in the Apple Orchard," written by Anthony Hope.

John Craig will become a real producing manager next week, when he gives "The End of the Bridge," the local première play that was selected from a grist of manuscripts submitted by Boston playwrights in Cambridge. It will be the first production of the play on any stage.

* * *

The changes at the theatres next week will be many. Tremont, "Green Stockings," with Emma Trentini, at the Boston; "Sweethearts," with Cyril Scott, at the Majestic; "Green Stockings," with Margaret Anglin, at the Tremont; "The End of the Bridge," at the Castle Square Theatre; "The Light Eternal," with Eugenie Blair, at the Globe; and "Caught in Mid-Ocean" at the Grand Opera House.

MARGARET ANGLIN IN PLAY BY MRS. HOWE

During Margaret Anglin's Boston engagement, which begins at the Tremont Theatre next Monday evening, she, by the courtesy of, with the co-operation of, the managers, Messrs. Liebler & Co., will give a special performance on Friday afternoon, March 24, of "Hippolytus," in which she will appear, supported by members of her present company and other artists especially engaged. The production of "Hippolytus," a drama written by the late Julia Ward Howe and never before seen on the stage, is singularly appropriate at this time, and Miss Anglin and her managers have decided that the entire proceeds shall be handed over to the committee forming the Howe Memorial Fund, with which they are in warm sympathy. The local committee arranging for the performance includes Mrs. Lars Anderson, Mrs. Bertram Francis Adams, 2d, Mrs. R. S. Codman, Mrs. William G. Endicott, Mr. John L. Gardiner, Mrs. James T. Fields, Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald, Mrs. Richard Fitzgerald, Mrs. George Lyman, Mrs. Stanley McCormick, Mrs. Charles Peckius, Mrs. Charles S. DE BLOIS DIVORCE READY FOR TRIAL

NEWPORT, March 2.—Among ten new divorce cases to be heard in the March session of the Superior Court, which opens in Newport next Monday, is that of Ethel Bradley DeBlois vs. Dr. Beth DeBlois. Dr. DeBlois is a graduate of Harvard Medical School and a member of the Newport Hospital staff. Young Mrs. DeBlois, a very pretty girl, and a favorite in local society, alleges among other things "that the libelee has paid marked attention to a certain other woman to the neglect of the petitioner." It is not stated who this "other woman" is, but persistent gossip says that she has until recently been employed here as a hospital nurse, and that she is now in Boston. Dr. DeBlois has lately made application for examination as a surgeon in the United States army.

SCORE BOSTON TAX ASSESSORS

That the assessors are not assessing "at its full cash value land held for speculative purposes in suburban sections of Boston and property in the business section," is the claim made by a sub-committee of the committee on legal affairs and legislation of the United Improvement Association. The report was framed in answer to a request from Mayor Fitzgerald that the United Improvement Association take up and consider the subject of taxing unearned increment. The report says in part:

"Land on Congress street sold in 1907 for $500,000. It is even to-day assessed for less than $450,000. In the business district, as the land is increased by the assessors, of necessity. The buildings are decreased for some other reason. Here are a few examples:

"Here perhaps the most flagrant illustration is in the case of Nos. 1 to 4 Tremont row, corner of Cornhill and Court street. In 1904 this building was assessed for $13,300 and, according to the assessors, was depreciated 63 per cent. in nine years, for it is now assessed for $4,900.

PASTOR SCORES SKATING RINK

MIDDLEBORO, March 2.—At the opening of the lenten services in the Sacred Heart Church Rev. J. P. Sullivan, the pastor, sounded a warning to the parents of young girls and condemned the town council for the suppression of crime for their toleration of the roller-skating rink and the moving picture theatres which permits the promiscuous intermingling of young men and girls.

The church was crowded to the doors and the congregation listened in rapt silence to the words of the priest.

"The spirit of Lent is to abstain from pleasure and amusement, legitimate enough in themselves, except in Lent," said Father Sullivan.

Disgrace to Community.

"I speak of the roller skating rink as a disgrace to the community. Some of the girls who frequent this place are no better than outcasts, and the morals of many of the men are far more offensive than the age of the old barn in which the rink is located.

"I don't speak to the parents who are led to all sense of shame and respect. Many boys and girls realize that the parents who might lull themselves into a fancied security best their children be on their guard. They realize that

"The conditions of the morals there is such as to make good parents shame of the men, young and old, pay the girl's admission fee, the ostensible risk of entering places shows, but do you presume ever stop to ask what return is demanded of your daughter by those luring creatures and did you ever stop to think how often that price was paid?

"I am not talking without having more than one sad case in view. When the question of opening a roller skating rink was proposed I wrote to the directors urging them not to permit this danger to come to our boys and girls. I told them that it proved a curse in other places, took the child from the home, led to crime on the streets, and, minus their parental supervision, introduced them to an undesirable element.

Town Is Agitated.

"But our pleas and reverend town fathers, other reasons they were personally interested or because they thought it no harm for the young to sow their wild oats, paid no attention to our pleas.

"There is much agitation in Middleboro at the outstanding of the committee for the suppression of vice, and at the session meeting Monday the people will protest against the maintaining of the committee. Father Sullivan's sermon last night is the talk of the town to-day, and it is believed that his words will prove a strong reason for the abolishing of the committee.

As Important as the Shoe

Before you buy your next pair of shoes find out if they were made by the Goodyear Welt process.

This knowledge saves you all bother about getting value received for your shoe money.

It makes plain to you that the way a shoe is made is the most important thing for the shoe buyer to know.

One feature you want is durability.

The Goodyear Welting machinery has a capacity of 500 tight, strong stitches a minute. Cheap or inferior materials cannot be utilized on these rapid machines. Good materials must be used. Long wear is assured.

No seam or thread from these swift flying needles penetrates the insole. Comfort is left smooth inside. Comfort is assured.

These machines make shoes more durable and comfortable than hand sewed, but at one-third the price. Economy is assured.

The most stylish shoe is invariably a Goodyear Welt. It has a smarter appearance even than a shoe hand sewed.

Thus Style, Economy, Durability and Comfort unite in every Goodyear Welt.

Aren't these the qualities you seek? Would you learn how to distinguish Goodyear Welts?

TUFT CO-EDS WIN IN TABLE DRAMA

Act II. of the Buffalo comedy-melodrama "Sez Against Sez, or "Who Will Eat the Beats at the Senior Banquet" to be played by the Tufts College graduating class, in the strongest one of the play, competent, if ramblous, critics agree it contains all the elements of a successful heart interest play, appealing especially to the very young.

The act closes with the complete triumph of the female sex and its male allies and the utter discomfiture and rout of the perverse males. Fourteen members of the Tufts class of 1911 are playing the roles of the deposited and disgruntled men, while eleven Jackson College girls, the coved institution at Tufts, and fourteen members of Tufts senior class are cast for the triumphant woman's party. Miss A. Adeline Steinberg is the leading woman and is ably supported by E. S. Thompson, Maldeken favorite young comedic actor and manager of the college baseball team. Charles Gott, a brilliant idol of Arlington and prominent in college fraternity circles as editor of the Tufts Weekly; Elmer I. Wood, a well-known undergraduate and manager of the Tufts football team; George Hall, the well-known character actor, and John F. Libby, the popular young principal.

The role of the "boss villain" is ably played by A. J. McLean and in his support are Clifford E. Williams, the college undergrown; Parker McWilliester and William P. Little.

The story of the play as summarized by the well-known Hittinger, a fellow of Tufts year, the first one of segregation at Tufts, a joint committee on the banquet is appointed. The committee, outnumbered by the girls, plans for a joint banquet. Then comes insurgency by part of the Tufts class who want the usual "blow." The second act closes with the thrilling and exciting class meeting scene in which there are forty-two people on the stage at one time.

Cubs and Athletics Will Win Flags Again, Says Expert

By Hugh S. Fullerton

Here is the dope.

If it isn't right, then the figures have lied or the players have not run true to form; don't blame me.

Here is the way the races should be decided according to my figures. The Athletics and the Cubs are stated to repeat if the dope doesn't go wrong. Below is the way I figure the first division teams in each league will stand at the wind-up of the pennant fights in October:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.	W.	L.	Pct.
Chicago	97	57	.630
Cincinnati	94	60	.610
New York	93	61	.604
Pittsburg	91	63	.591

AMERICA NLEAGUE.	W.	L.	Pct.
Philadelphia	97	52	.651
Detroit	89	61	.593
New York	87	63	.580
Chicago	86	68	.553

I set down two weeks ago with a clear conscience, wrote the names of 326 base ball players and near-baseball players, property of the sixteen major league clubs, scratched out and revised as fast as they made changes, and following a system of figures and calculations discovered by means of addition, subtraction and multiplication, arrived at the results herein contained.

Not until the final figures were compiled did I know which team they would indicate. The figures did not bow to exactly what I thought they would, although they came pretty close to it.

It is my intention in this article to show you exactly how I doped the clubs, so if you doubt the result, or want to figure it for yourselves, just go ahead.

I only used up about 4,000 sheets of paper and worked until the electric light bill will eat up the profits, and you must do the same. It is just simple addition, multiplication and division.

I understand, however, that those figures do not pretend to size any comparison between the National and American leagues. They do only in a faint way. They are a study of the comparative merits of men in different clubs of the same league, not of men in the rival leagues.

If such a comparison should be attempted the figures would be much different, as the basis of figuring would change entirely. Also understand that I am using my own formula, because, as far as I know, there are no others.

I am satisfied that they are pretty close to correct, and baseball men, club owners and players have told me that they are about their estimates of value.

The only reason I basket upon these figures is that they are much more reliable and dependable than any "dope" I ever hung on horse races—and that, by the way, is the only thing figuring by the system has ever worked out pretty well in the finish.

You must remember, however, that every change in a team changes the figures. You do not say the race track tipsters was wrong if the horse he picked was withdrawn, and it is the same in baseball.

In these figures, for instance, I was compelled to change many additions because Stahl quit Boston, Campbell retired from Pittsburg and other minor changes that affected the result took place while I was working on them.

Fielding Averages Don't Count.

To start at the beginning, get a list of the players of each club, and rate each man according to the strength he has as a fielder, batter and base runner. In doing this ignore the records except for hitting and base running. There is no worse index to a man's ability than his fielding average. It puts infields.

If you do not know the player, his style, his fitness, his influence upon other players and his general value to the team the figures will give an idea. Do not use the usual fielding figures, but study the assists and errors of the infielder to see how he covers ground, and they will help.

In compiling these figures I took ball players' estimates of each other in the great majority of cases. They rate each other very closely, and it is hard to find a difference of opinion as to the comparative strength of known players, and that is what this dope is; merely a comparative study of the players, expressed in percentages and expressed in numbers rather than words.

My formula for the comparative value of positions is one over which I have toiled long and discussed with many players. Any one knows the pitcher is more important than the outfielder, but by how much is different. I have figured from the chances of the players, from the importance of those chances, and from the work of pitchers and catchers, this formula:

Catchers, 14 per cent.
Pitchers, 28 per cent.
Infield, 32 per cent.
Outfield, 26 per cent.

This applies, of course, only to the defensive strength, and in studying defense forget entirely whether the player can hit or run the bases or not. That is a separate function.

Of the infield's 32 per cent. I value the first baseman at 7, second baseman 10, shortstop 10 and third baseman 5. Of the outfield's 26 per cent. I allot 6 to the left fielder, 5½ to the centre fielder and 4½ to the right fielder.

The pitcher, we say, is 28 per cent. of the entire defensive strength of the team. But all pitchers are not alike. That is, if there are nineteen pitchers, you cannot figure each at 2 per cent. The study of the pitchers is a separate problem entirely. I have followed the plan of working out each pitcher.

The first pitcher on a team (not necessarily the best) will pitch about thirty-five games, the second thirty, the third about thirty, the fourth twenty-five and the fifth twenty, leaving twenty-five to be pitched by the scattering pitchers.

You could then figure the first pitcher at seven-thirtieths of the entire value of the pitching staff and so on through the list, and finally average their values and get the entire worth of the pitching staff. However, I have found it more satisfactory to myself to take each pitcher and figure what he probably will do.

It would not be correct to figure Coombs or Walsh at thirty-five games, when both assuredly will pitch over forty, or say Bender would pitch thirty. I figure the first five pitchers on each team in that way and then bunch the remaining pitchers and recruits and calculate what percentage of the remaining games they can save.

All calculations are made on the basis of 1,000. When I say that Ty Cobb is 1,000 among the centre fielders I do not mean that he is perfect, but merely establish 1,000 as the basis by which the other centre fielders are to be rated.

If Cobb is worth 1,000, how much is Tris Speaker worth? And so on through the list, each centre fielder being given a value as compared with Cobb.

But the centre fielder is not worth 1,000 in the defensive work of the team. He is worth only 5½ per cent. of the entire team value, therefore Cobb is worth only 55 in the team—and the other centre fielders lose in proportion to their fielding, throwing and ground-covering capacity.

YANKEES START PRACTICE TODAY

HOT SPRINGS, Va., March 2.—The New York American League team had its first practice today. Of the players due to report here the only one missing is Harry Wolter, the outfielder. Manager Chase had a wire from Wolter this morning saying he had recovered from tonsilitis and would leave California for the East next Saturday.

Chase and his party from New York, on their arrival here, were welcomed by several players who already had arrived, as well as by a snow storm. It wasn't much of a snow storm, just a flurry and the weather is good for outdoor work. Frank Farrell was on hand. The Yankee regulars have been arriving in batches for several days.

The following is a list of those who are on hand: Fisher, Vaughn, Ford, Quinn, Warhop and Caldwell, pitchers; Blair and Sweeney, catchers; Chase, Knight, Gardner, Roach, Johnson, Elliott and Hartzell, infielders; Daniels and Hemphill, outfielders.

Cree will not report until the team reaches Athens two weeks from now. He has a fruit farm in Pennsylvania and has promised to stay at home until the 15th. Every man on the squad reports himself as fit. Russell Ford looks strong as a bull. He has conditioned out during the Winter and has some weight to take off. Gardner wants to put on some weight. He is thin as usual. Blair, Sweeney, Quinn, Daniels, Vaughn, Warhop, Roach and Fisher are all husky and rugged.

Elliott, the new infielder, who is expected to give Hartzell a tussle for the third base position, is a small boyish looking 16-footer. Hartzell got a warm greeting from the other players and made no effort to conceal his pleasure at being one of the Hilltop brigade. There was no work of any sort today, the fall will begin to-morrow. Chase has laid out a formula, consisting of mountain climbing, baths and a little practice with the baseball. All of the players are delighted with their surroundings.

REDS START WORK AT TRAINING CAMP

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 2.—Clark Griffith and the players of the Cincinnati National baseball team arrived to-day to take up their Spring training. Weather conditions probably will prevent outdoor practice before Saturday.

SEXTON DRILLS HARVARD SQUAD

By E. V. B. PARKE.

The Harvard baseball squad swung into the Spring season's hard work when all men who had won their baseball "H," or had played on the second varsity or freshmen teams reported for practice. The response to the call numbered some twelve players.

The men who came out for the first time yesterday, were Captain McLaughlin, pitcher and first baseman on the nine last year, Power, the star second sacker, A. J. Kelly, who alternately played left field and warmed the bench last Spring, J. P. Carr, a substitute short stop, who is known for his propensity to break a ball throwing record by trying to toss the horse-hide over the Stadium on his throws to first, "Dick" Lewis, of schoolboy ball tossing reputation, and the following players on last year's second team: C. Hunn, first base; H. L. Desha, third base; H. F. Gibson, catcher; W. J. O'Connell, second base; J. L. Bolton, field; J. P. Kennedy, first baseman; H. A. Johnson, outfield.

Of these last named Desha seems a likely man to fill in at third base where a big hole has been made by the graduation of Captain Lanigan, one of the most consistent third sackers the Crimson has had for a long time. Desha, however, will need much coaching and a bit more batting ability to win a new coach may do the trick. O'Connell, is a snappy little infielder and he too may have a chance at the last stop but one. His position is second, but as for beating out Potter, the holder of this position—why, there isn't a chance.

ATHLETICS ON WAY TO TRAINING CAMP

PHILADELPHIA, March 2.—The veteran members of the world's champions, the Philadelphia team of the American League, are on their way to Virginia Hot Springs, where they will spend ten days before joining the newcomers at Savannah. Included in the party are Catchers Thomas, Lapp and Livingston; Pitchers Bender, Plank and Coombs; Infielders Davis, Collins, Baker and Barry and Outfielders Murphy, Oldring and Lord.

Hartzell is already at Hot Springs and Morgan will join the squad there. The rest of the squad will leave here on Saturday, going directly to Savannah.

EDDIE SHEVLIN IS PICKED TO DEFEAT BROOKLYN FIGHTER

Mutt Has an Eye to Business Even in the Mexican Revolution — By "Bud" Fisher

SHEVLIN PICKED TO BEAT POWERS

Eddie Shevlin of this city and Harry Powers of Brooklyn, the fast welterweights who furnished one of the most thrilling contests ever seen in that city only two weeks ago, clash to-night at the Unity Club, Lawrence. A big crowd of Boston sports will take in the battle.

Interest waxes hot over the prospects of another contest of the sort in which they engaged in their initial appearance. Both are conditioned to the minute, and each is confident that he will win the decision.

Shevlin is a great favorite in Lawrence, but he does not overshadow the other fellow in favoritism to any great extent. Powers has a legion of followers who believe that he can whip Shevlin, and they will back him to do it to-night. Their offers will not go begging, for the Shevlin contingent will go prepared to another any odds that they may produce.

The semi-final between Tommy Murphy of South Lawrence and Jimmy Quinlan of Lynn is also creating a lot of interest. They are a couple of wizard, hard hitting lightweights who will make things very interesting for one another, also for the spectators.

QUEEN'S HOCKEY TEAM TRIUMPHS

By E. V. B. PARKE.

The Boston Hockey Club met its second defeat in the Arena when it went down for the count before a Canadian seven, this time the victor being the Queen's College team, by 4 to 3. The game lasted several hours, and although it seemed to drag, was really very exciting at all times, and was also productive of some mix-ups by the players which might have led spectators to believe that it was being conducted under the Marquis of Queensberry rules.

Boston was certainly not up to its usual form, nor were Huntington, cover for Harvard, and Sortwell, the freshman forward, who were given players on the Boston team last night. Boston had some clubbed many times, but for poor passes or loafing forwards. In the latter category Foster was prominent, and his poor showing hampered the efforts of Seamans, who took his place at the second half, did not do justice to the attack.

The Canadians played together, and yet were always with the puck, quick to snap up any stray shots, while every forward proved to be a good defensive player, and in this way prevented the Boston team from getting within shot of their goal out a couple of times.

BAD WEATHER HOLDS UP GIANTS' PRACTICE

MARLIN, Tex., March 2.—There was little or no practice here to-day on account of the bad weather. Shortly after noon McGraw advised the old members of the team to take a run of a mile or two to get warmed up. Almost all of them took advantage of the opportunity. Mathewson is down to weight now and says it will take him only a little while to get in shape.

KID ALBERTS HAS SHADE ON DEVINE

NEW YORK, March 2.—Kid Alberts had a shade the better of Mickey Devine in the star bout of 10 rounds at the Sharkey A. C. The fight was very rough. In the semi-final Young Frederick won easily from Charley Burns in four rounds. Frederick dropped his adversary in the first and third rounds with right-hand swings to the jaw.

SPORTS of all SORTS
BY RILEY

FRED MITCHELL, THE LOCAL CATCHer, dropped in at Clark's this morning long enough to say that he would start with the candidates for the Boston Eastern League team, for the training ground at Anniston, Alabama, March 12. "Mitch" cannot get over the fact that he was let out of the American League, when according to the official averages he ranked as one of the leading backstops of the organization. He will be back again in the majors, never fear, said Mitch. Manager John Dorgan of the Rochester champions has given his unequivocal promise for the coming season, and as my right wing, he has that, however, I am sure of securing an excellent season in the Eastern League.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF ALL HORSEmen who are going down to see the interstate race between Lee and Peter Sellers, 2:11¼, and Lyndonia Rex, 2:12¾, at Granite State Park, Dover, N. H., on Friday, March 10, I would say, in a number of inquiries, that the train leaves the North station at 10.10 a. m., which the horses are to make the journey. It now looks as if there should be more speculation upon it at meeting of a few years than to say Winter race held in New England in many years. And it looks to me as if Redmond would bring home the bacon.

THE "SHORTS" AMONG THE SPORTing men about town were certainly well burned up upon that Quill Lajoie bout. And to think that Quill who, not a month ago, had Jack Edward Briggs should be as good as a set of Senegambian ivory ticklers as he showed that he had lowered a recipe with Frank Calder, Mike Haley, Jeddo Lee, Reveal and Young Loughrey. Well, it was a rare joke that went around the members of "the scientific" who were round in town by the long odds offered was proof that Which only goes to show that about odds in as often a good thing can be put across in the boxing game.

OVER IN WOONSOCKET, R. I., the thriving little mill city where every other man is a sportsman and which is famous as the home of Eddie Lopez, the field leader of the circuit of Nope, they are now initiating a new baseball. Labelle in the person of Joe Gaudette, who started baseball life as a catcher two years ago, and can still put a crimp in the pitching end of the game. Gaudette's great form has ever seemed to be lofting and speed. He hats from his offend and they say scouts down to size as bad as any man in the game. He has decided to confine his efforts in the field. He attended when his wing should be rounding the value. If Connolly is all that he claimed for him a corker Boston can't have him. He has a contract with the National League now but a deal could somehow be made for him.

I MET JOE COLLINS, THE COHASSET rider and driver, and Harry Coulter at one of the big city hotels. "Do you know," said Joe, "that Paul Song's crack four-in-hand, the Mountain, Queen of the Road, The Bird and The Hive was owned in Sandwich at Brockton, we bring Scituate over the hammers. This four driven to a coach, carrying fifteen passengers, have been five and one-half miles in eighteen minutes flat, and at White Plains, N. Y., over a half mile track, with a flying start covered a mile in three minutes and two seconds. It is the fastest coaching four ever shown in this country." Neither Joe nor Harry think that Vanity Fair, the fastest high stepping champion harness pony of the horse world will bring anywhere near the price that is expected for him.

ALL-STAR CARD AT QUINCY CLUB

There will be a big rush to the Quincy Rowing Association's headquarters in the Coliseum in Quincy to-night. The club has three well matched teams for its opening show, and the series of bouts should result in the liveliest lot of exchanges that have taken p. in this vicinity for many days. Johnny Glover of South Boston has always been an interesting performer, while his opponent, Kid Goodman, never in his career backed away from anyone. Glover is clever, but Goodman is more aggressive. The scientific fellows have been handing the victories, however, and the fans from the Dorchester district believe that Glover will rise Goodman in the back ground about the time Pop Captain is giving a head of the pair Tommy Flaherty of Cambria, and Kid Knockout Cummings of the South End will get together. They are said to be real rivals. Jerry Gallo with Bill Dugan of Lowell says in the Lowell of Packard Roll it likes to go. Jerry is supposed to be a good one. It looks as if it will be a good show all the way through.

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

Desperate Desmond

HERE COMES KING!
YOU CANNOT ESCAPE ME IN THIS SEWER. DESMOND YOU TRIED TO STEAL MY ROSAMOND AND YOU MUST ANSWER TO ME, CLAUDE ECLAIRE
I'LL ESCAPE THROUGH THIS MANHOLE AND HANG ONTO THE OUTSIDE. CLAUDE WILL BE TOO LATE. HA! HA! HA!
PRESENT ARMS!
DESMOND ESCAPED THROUGH HERE AND I WILL FOLLOW!
GROUND ARMS!
OUCH!
AN ANARCHIST ESCAPED YOU IN TIME!
AND ARE IN PARIS. FOLLOW ME PARIS!
I ASSURE YOU I AM INNOCENT! I AM LOOKING FOR—
YOUR LOVER, CLAUDE IT LOST. MARRY ME ROSAMOND OR I'LL THROW YOU FROM THE EIFFEL TOWER!

Desmond and Claude are having a little swimming contest d wn in the sewer and Claude is rapidly gaining on the villain. If it were not for all those soldiers lined up along the s reet waiting for the King, Desmond would climb out through a manhole and get away from his pursuer, but he'll have to keep on swimming until the parade is over.

Strike up the band! here comes the King! Now is Desmond's chance. The soldiers have their eyes forward and the villain, if he were not for all those soldiers lined up along the street waiting for the King, Desmond would climb out through a manhole and get away from his pursuer, but he'll have to keep on swimming until the parade is over.

But Claude is on, going to let the villain escape so easily. He, too, can crawl through a manhole and when he tells those brave soldiers that the notorious criminal, Desmond is visiting the city, they will certainly be tickled to death to help him apprehend the villain. That's the way Claude does it out.

The only noble is that before our brave hero its a chance to speak, one of the noble drops the butt of his gun on his coco—and that ends the conversation before it starts. Tough luck, isn't it But then, many be, the soldiers won't have believed Claude anyhow.

While His Majesty's troops are arresting Claude on suspicion that he is an anarchist with designs on the King's life, Desmond takes advantage of the confusion to sneak through the lines and grab Rosamond. By the time our hero succeeds in establishing his innocence, the villain will have spirited his fair victim away to Paris.

Didn't we tell you so? There he is now, on top of the Eiffel Tower, about to throw Rosamond to the ground if she refuses to marry him, as she certainly will. And the Eiffel Tower is about 9mph liures as high as the Banker Hill Monument. Quite some drop, what? This seems to be a pretty good place to stop and wait for to-morrow's pictures.

The Flight of Youth

By R. T. CHANDLER

FROM the forests of the night,
From the palace of the day,
He hath winged a distant flight;
No more loons he on our sight,
No more loons he to our sway.

He was cunning in the mart,
He was mighty with the sword,
He was skilled in every art,
Like a king he dwelt apart,
And we fathomed not his word.

Weep for him, eschewdenizes
Of the valley and the hill,
Of the forest and the fen!
For he cometh not again
To our glory or our ill.

Wake the echo of the lyre
And the melody of song
With a full and tragic fire!
For our yearning shall not tire
Till it mourneth sweet and long.

Till the weary desert's verge
And the shaggy mountain's head
And the quiet-evening surge
Hear, and answer to the dirge
Of our Youth that now is dead.

Never Give Up

By BERTON BRALEY

You may often think that hard
Is your lot;
That with mortal wounds you're scarred,
When you're not;
But remember, when you doubt
What's ahead,
That you're never down and out
Till you're dead.

When Fate thumps you on the nose
With a whack,
Don't you whimper at her blows;
Hit her back!
Set it your teeth and "go the route"
Till she's fled,
For you're never down and out
Till you're dead.

Pain and wealth and all the rest
Help a bit;
But the man who stands the test
Has the grit.
Keep your heart and courage stout
As you tread,
For you're never down and out
Till you're dead!

CHAPTER II.—(Continued)

THEY entered an apartment which was divided in two by a beautifully carved and gilded wooden screen, on which was portrayed an episode in the life of the god, Pwan Ku. In the further compartment the incandescent lights were dimmed by the smoke of many burning punk-sticks. The table in the centre of the room was set for two, after the fashion of the white man; and on a dais at the end of the room Ah Moy and Suey Sen—damsels much in demand by reason of their accomplishments—twanged their samyens and sang songs famous in the Flowery Land.

The dinner was served by a soft-footed Chinaman and consisted of dishes well known in the cuisines of America and China. Lee Toy ate and drank whatever was set before him with the nil admirari of a man of breeding.

Nothing to Conceal

"I would know, Quong Lung, to what I owe thy munificence toward me."

The young man's eyes met the aged merchant's frankly, and Quong Lung knew men too well to beat about the bush with a man of this sort.

"Your dead interest me, Lee Toy, to begin with. I have heard something about you, and would know more. It may be that I can put thee in the way of redeeming thy fortunes. See, I would ascertain face with me in the great game I play, in which men are the pieces. Whatever thou mayest have heard—and I have many enemies pledged to distort the truth concerning me—my affairs require the maintenance of law and order—my law and order—in Chinatown. My interests here are so varied and great that they can be advanced only by the maintenance of law and order—my law and order—in the way that seems best to me. Unfortunately, my subordinates have so far been coolies, men of the lower orders, with brute instincts, and wiles; but now my lieutenants sing songs, men of breeding and education like thyself. I should not come into conflict with the representatives of the laws of this country. Whence comest thou, and wherefore are thou here? Do not answer if the question appear to thee to be unfair."

"There is nothing to conceal, Quong Lung; I am an actor and conjurer, and I am but three days from Los Angeles, whence my partner decamped, leaving me to settle with the poorer brethren who played with me. He hath forestalled me with the brethren of my craft here, hence the roughness of the lodging where you found me this night. You see, some of the poor players had wives and children, and I cannot abide the wail of a hungry child; and so I did what you would have done, and came here, therefore, with an empty purse."

"But the lane where I found thee this night is a Lane of Death."

"So they said, and therefore, I sought it, for I have nothing to lose"; and Lee Toy smiled most ingenuously.

"Thy life?"

"But who should kill me? I have no enemies here who desire my death."

"It Must Not Be Blood"

"See, Lee Toy," returned the other, carelessly, "there is that in thy countenance and air that begetteth confidence. I will not subject thee to the mummery of the oaths that are administered to our hatchet-men. I will put my life in thy hands," finished Quong Lung, with an air of entire frankness, as he replenished the glasses on the table. "I shall not ask thee," he went on, "to do that which is cruel. I shall but ask thee to find a bird for my cage. The care of the bird shall be thy special task, and its restoration to liberty shall greatly enhance thy fortune. To-morrow thou shalt see the cage ere I propound the fluting of the bird to thee."

"And on whom would thy stroke fall?"

"Captain Loomis."

"Ah! precisely. But it must not involve blood."

"Of course not, of course not, Lee Toy; a man of breeding may not imbrue his hands in blood. Fah!"

PART IV.—CHAPTER III

The Much-Maligned Quong Lung

"BY the gods!" exclaimed Lee Tung Yung, the young "man about town," to his pampered friend, Nu Fong; "by the gods! Lee Toy hath risen from the forgotten, and his garments are as gorgeous as a morning sky. See where he comes."

They stopped and stared as Lee Toy walked down Dupont street with the poise and dignity that belong to affluence and good breeding. Recognizing his quondam companions across the street, he gave them an easy greeting and would have passed on; but they would not be denied, and crossed over to him.

"The brightness of the morning hath an added lustre from thy shining countenance, Lee Toy," said Lee Yung. "The sun of thy fortune hath evidently newly risen."

"I have won the favor of the gods, Lee Yung."

"But they always require service of the favored," cut in Nu Fong; "service apportioned to the favors they bestow."

"Very justly," returned Lee Toy.

"And thou hast evidently accomplished thy service, for in the splendor of thy crimson silken nether-garments we recognize one effect of thy reward."

"Now, nay, Nu Fong; these are but a foretaste of my awards and of the greatness that awaits me for the things that I shall do;" and Lee Toy smiled.

"The gods do not often anticipate good deeds with rewards. But who may be their emissary in this matter?"

"The much maligned Quong Lung, whose benevolence is equalled only by his sense of justice."

"And his sense of justice," said Nu Fong, with a sneer, "is tempered by many unexpected happenings."

Then, noticing signs of resentment in Lee Toy's face, the friends recrossed the street, their scurrilous laughter increasing his irritation.

When Lee Toy had reached Jackson street he turned to the right, and soon arrived at the store of his newly found friend, Quong Lung.

"Thou art in luck this morning, Lee Toy," was Quong Lung's greeting to the young actor. Then, in answer to Lee Toy's inquiring looks, he went on: "Thy dishonest partner, Ah Sam, was found dead in his lodging this morning; and his landlord, who is one of my tenants, discovered this well-filled purse in it, and a writing therein showing it was plainly stolen from thee."

Lee Toy hesitated for a moment as he thought of the late saying of Nu Fong. But Quong Lung's countenance expressed such benevolence as he held out the purse to Lee Toy.

"And now I may repay thee a portion of what I owe thee Quong Lung," said Lee Toy, opening the purse.

"Thou shalt pay me in gentle service, young brother; money goeth not between us. Come now, and see my cage."

He took Lee Toy by the hand, and led him through many a tortuous passage and devious by-ways till they came out on the roof of a building that was leased by a Chinese "Literary Society for the Study of English"—a euphonistic description for the most ferocious tong in Chinatown, the leaders of the "high-binders" had even signified their "literary" intention to one of the many Christian missions interested in the moral welfare of Chinatown, and when Quong Lung and Lee Toy reached their destination, a lady in the room below, to an organ accompaniment, was singing "We Won't Go Home Till Morning" to the entire amusement of the assembled cut-throats, who smiled blandly while they joined in the objectionable oaths.

The roof was higher than any building in sight, and could not, therefore, be overlooked by any of them. It was surrounded, moreover, by a walled parapet, about four feet in height. At one end was a little house of two rooms, one furnished as a sleeping room and the other with a dais on which were a couple of smoking mats and the implements for "black smoke."

The Cage for the Bird

The other end of the roof was furnished with pot plants and carpeted with soft mattings, and a gayly striped awning made a charming retreat of it, the contents of which was enhanced by the contrast presented by the roaring traffic of the street below.

"What think you of my cage?" asked Quong Lung, after he had shown Lee Toy round and seated him on one of the smoking mats.

"'Tis fit for a royal bird," replied Lee Toy, answering Quong Lung in his own humor.

"Ye for dalliance with sweet thoughts. Here do I often meditate beneath the stars, alone with my fancy, here do I plan that order—my order—shall flow from the disorders of the warring tongs. Ah, my young brother, the people—whose welfare alone I have at heart—little know of my solicitude for them. The stars and the winds that lay their cooling benedictions on my anxious head have no speech, else were I honored as a saint."

"The utterance of thy lofty sentiments is a compliment to me, my elder brother. But tell me how I may serve thee—is there in that gentle service—and for the benefit of our people, Lee Toy. See, they are not a match for the White Devils, whose harass them by day and night; their troubles have been increased lately by the iron hand of the iniquitous law as administered by the police officer appointed to Chinatown, one Captain Loomis. He must be disciplined. But, before we have further speech in this matter, I must make amends for my lack of courtesy."

The Hidden Spring

He touched a hidden spring, and a panel in the wall flew open, disclosing a tiny cupboard, in which were gum sha and cups—and a formidable revolver. Noting Lee Toy's look of surprise at seeing the latter, he said:

"You see, young brother, even my benevolence hath to guard against the machinations of the White Devils. Nay, look here."

He touched another spring, and a drawer was disclosed in which was a very efficient rope ladder with grappling hooks.

"It is even possible that I may be put to it some day to use this means of flight, whilst I am mediating benevolence and justice under the quiet and soothing influence of the stars, owing to the suspicions and ill-will of Captain Loomis."

"The good are ever misunderstood and ill-used, Quong Lung. But how may I serve thee?"

"Drink first, and smoke awhile, ere I propound to thee in what way thou mayest help me in the liberties that my benevolence and solicitude for others have imposed on me."

CHAPTER IV.
Liming the Twig

AFTER Quong Lung and Lee Toy had smoked three or four pipes, and disposed of a like number of cups of sam shu, the former broke the silence with a sigh of resignation and said:

"Lee Toy, my heart was moved with a great pity when it was told to me that a sing-song of gentle breeding had sought shelter in Duncombe alley. As thou didst in asleep there, the night I found thee, I was minded to put my own son, Quong Ching, who died of the plague last year in Honolulu, in charge of the agency of business pertaining to my firm. And it seems as I looked upon thee in thy sleep that Quong Ching had, indeed, come back to me, for he was of thy age and likeness, and when, from that night, I was stand before me, the likeness was heightened by thy carriage and speech.

"He was brave, too, and a son after my own heart; and he gave me much advice concerning the maintenance of order in this turbulent town, and also mentioned to an amiable weakness of mine—and there is much to be done." He paused a while, as though in sorrowful meditation.

"If it would ease thy smart, Quong Lung, I would fain take up the thread of Quong Ching's service to thee, for I owe thee much."

"May the sun shine propitiously on thee, my young brother, for thy kind words! They are as a soothing salve to an old sore. But, nay; it were asking too much of thee—the carrying out of that which is on my mind for the good of our downtrodden people."

"Try me, Quong Lung—for the sake of Quong Ching."

"It is a gentle service, too, as I said before, and one befitting a man of gentle birth. Was Shun and Sam Lee are villeins and coolies, and not to be trusted in this matter which concerns the ensnaring of a—a little bird, and its care in this my gentle cage."

Bad railroad reports caused many persons to reconsider their opinion of the Interstate Commerce Commission rate decision, although one of the chief arguments asked for no increase, and it is known that officials of the Union Pacific would be pleased to retain their present rates. The New York Central timely reported the net earnings of the day, is the one system which the Interstate Commerce Commission believes to prove that the railroads were earning enough.

Homes with Morgan connections are ultra-bearish on New York Central expectations that the dividend rate will be reduced from 6 to 5 per cent., which will force the price to below par. The company paid 5½ per cent. last year, the dividend for the first quarter of the year being 1½ per cent., while the three subsequent ones were 1½ per cent. each. In 1909 the company paid 5 per cent., in 1908 5½ per cent. and in 1907 6 per cent. Subsequent to that 5 per cent. was the rate paid. The company will find it difficult to finance its present needs.

It has been shown that all stock and bond offerings, which are at all attractive are snapped up eagerly by investors, and while some of them impose a heavier burden than usual upon the corporations seeking these loans, the prediction is verified that those who are in need of money must pay for it. Cash is not being given away.

So many weird reports are afloat regarding Missouri Pacific that a feeling is developing that the system ought to be investigated. Such an investigation would very quickly settle the question of who is in control. The suggestion has been made that a corps of expert accountants go over the books of the company covering the last twenty years and make public the estimate of the value of the assets, giving their exact reasons for every statement made. The reason for this suggestion is that, in connection with Missouri Pacific, it is difficult to recognize a fact even after it is proven. Any stockholder of record could bring about an investigation that would be of great interest to the public and to State street.

Atchison will continue to pay 6 per cent. in spite of the finding of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and it is regarded as very low at this figure. However, investors have not forgotten all the things President Ripley has said as to the effect of a refusal to permit an increase in freight rates, and they are not going into Atchison as much as they did. The stock promises to go higher though.

President Underwood of the Erie Railroad said that every dollar of earnings over and above fixed charges this year would be spent on improvements and that there would be no retrenchment as a result of the rate decision. No new capital will be raised for this purpose.

The fact that Pennsylvania and Buffalo Iron is now quoted at an increase of from 25 cents to 50 cents per ton, and the prices for other irons are firmer than they were several weeks ago, bodes well for the iron trade, which has been extremely dull in the past several months.

On good authority it is stated that the American Agricultural Chemical Company will probably declare a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. annually when the directors meet on March 15. This good news being out, several holders of the stock took advantage of it to sell yesterday and take their profits. The buying is said to have been of the best sort.

SCOTCH CITIZENS CELEBRATE TO-NIGHT

The Scottish Musical Comedy Company will present "Tam O'Shanter," a musical sketch based on Robert Burns's poem of the same name, to-night in Jordan Hall. L. R. Merrill, James Gilbert, Thomas Henderson and John Daniels will be in the cast, and the orchestra, made up of players from the Boston Opera House, will be conducted by Charles Frank. A humorous sketch entitled "Breaking Into Scotch," will serve to introduce the Misses Wood in character-istic Scotch dances. They will be accompanied on the pipes by D. Ferrier.

DR. ELIOT ANSWERED—Mirandy will give the poor woman's side of the big family argument in the City Life Section of the Sunday AMERICAN.

STOCK MARKET TRADING DULL

NEW YORK, March 2.—Heaviness characterized the opening of the stock market to-day, with fractional declines in many of the active stocks. Reading was off ¼, Missouri Pacific ⅛ and Union Pacific ⅛. Erie and Atchison opened unchanged.

United States Steel showed a decline of ⅛ in the initial prices. In the coppers Amalgamated opened ¼ lower. Virginia Carolina was ¾ lower.

In some quarters in Wall Street, the tone of the market was attributed to confessedly adverse affairs in Washington.

Trading was dull, and there was little inclination to buy on account of news from Washington which indicated an extra session of Congress. However, there was an absence of selling pressure. This was taken to indicate that stocks were in strong hands. Steel developed some degree of firmness after the opening. The curb market opened irregular.

A steady tone characterized the American shares in the London market, but there was little trading.

HUSTLING FOR BIG AUTO SHOW

By J. C. KERRISON.

Yesterday found all the local automobile men busy as bay could be, receiving their show exhibits and preparing in many ways for the opening of the exhibit on Saturday night. There is every indication of the show being ready for business with a view to the advertised opening time, as every one is straining every nerve and every effort to have things in readiness.

The next three days will, indeed, be busy ones in the motor world, as everyone will get down to work and do things with a hustle and bustle.

The large number of show cars which are daily arriving are being drawn through the streets of Boston are attracting no end of interest, as well they might, considering the fact that many of them are particularly attractive to the rank and file.

A. R. Pardington, discussing the plans for the Automobile Race Circuit in Dedham, the new day, said that practically all of his plans were completed, and that the nineteen-car special train which will be run in two sections to accommodate the racing cars and their crews was filed.

Only thirty racing cars can be carried and each company is limited to three cars and a crew of three men. Every company will have a special car for its three racing machines, and there will also be a machine shop car filled with lathes, gasoline, water and transformers. Another car will be divided into bins for carrying gasoline. The tire and magneto companies will divide another car, while still another car will carry the referee, starter, two members of the technical committee and two members of the Warner Instrument Company staff to do the timing. Another car will be reserved for the newspaper men.

The season will open at Indianapolis on May 30, and after two days' racing, the train will move on to Louisville. In all, twenty-two cities will be visited in about the order after the Louisville meet: Atlanta, New York (Empire Track), probably Riverhead, Long Island; Port Jefferson (hill climb), Boston, Worcester (hill climb), Providence, Wilkes-Barre (hill climb) Philadelphia, Chicago, Algonquin (hill climb), Detroit, (road race). Detroit, Milwaukee, Indianapolis, St. Paul, Syracuse, Lowell (road races), Philadelphia (Fairmount Park), New York (Vanderbilt Cup), Atlanta, Savannah (Grand Prize).

CHURCHES GAIN BY MRS. BOSTWICK'S WILL

St. Mark's Methodist Church of Brookline and St. John's Methodist Church of Watertown each received $500 under the will of Mrs. Mary Robinson Bostwick of No. 465 Washington street, Brookline, who died January 25 last. The will was allowed to-day in the Norfolk Probate Court at Dedham. Mrs. Bostwick left an estate of $15,000 in personal property. She was the daughter of the late Rev. J. B. Hustard.

How Advertising Has Made Public Men

A large advertising field, according to the editor of a great newspaper, will be political advertising.

He divides advertising for public men into two kinds—automatic and direct. He calls automatic advertising such advertising as works for a man through a man's deeds or prominence without being direct advertising.

For instance, he calls Roosevelt's trip up San Juan Hill the best advertising that Roosevelt did; McKinley's best advertising was his connection with the McKinley Bill; Cleveland's best advertising, the fact that he carried New York State by 192,000 plurality, and Taft's best advertisement that he was the man picked out by a modern predecessor in the President's chair for difficult missions.

And the greatest advertising phrase ever applied to Mr. Taft he received from President Roosevelt when Roosevelt was sailing for Panama. Mr. Roosevelt, when asked who would look after things while he was in Panama, said, "Taft will sit on the lid until I come back," thereby creating the impression the country would be safe with Taft in charge.

The fifth primaries in New Hampshire recently filled the leading New Hampshire newspaper with political advertising. Each candidate made his appeal to the public, irrespective of conventions, for votes at the direct primary, after which he gave to show that the day for political advertising has only begun.

Advertising is as essential to a man seeking office as it is to a merchant desiring customers. It keeps him before the public eye and it doesn't matter whether he does something or whether he says something, if it has the quality that will attract the right kind of attention, it will help him. He even may go so far as some Congressmen have done and wear freak clothes.

Advertising is nothing more nor less than getting people turn to your goods, and the best way to do it is to use a local newspaper. A local newspaper doesn't scatter its fire, but concentrates its fire in a given locality or section. It's a kind of advertising that talks to your neighbor and to his neighbor. It's the kind that talks oftenest and talks most effectively. It reaches more dealers than any other kind.

The New England field is one of the greatest purchasing centres in the country. The Boston American has the greatest circulation in its 400,000 readers daily, of any other newspaper in the New England field. Let it talk for you to its large circulation every day or every other day. It will create a demand for your goods from those who perhaps would never otherwise hear of them.

COOKIE RIVALS PAVING STONE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 2.—A cocoanut cookie furnished as part of the dessert at the boarding house of the Rhode Island State College has been found under actual test to have a tensile strength as great as that of ordinary cement.

When put in the cement tester the cookie stood intact till the pressure indicator registered 104 pounds to the square inch.

Then the cookie gave up the ghost. It cracked.

The test was made by R. B. Robinson, a senior from New York by birth and Missouri by instinct. Robinson had tried in vain to sink his teeth into the cookie at the boarding house table. Failing to dent it with his teeth he slipped it into a pocket and made the fortunate test later. The news created a profound impression among the students.

The result upon the cement market is yet to become known, but the students reckon that the Asphalt Trust will see its finish. They are compiling statistics to show that cookies can be made for cheap mercial and paving purposes at so cheap a rate that asphalt will be forced out of the market.

BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, MARCH 2, 1911

The Direct Election by the People of United States Senators Is Postponed, Not Killed.

The Senate of the United States, led by the New England Senators, IN PARTICULAR BY SENATOR LODGE, by defeating the resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution providing that Senators be elected by direct vote of the people, has postponed the fulfilment of the people's will, BUT HAS NOT KILLED IT.

The people of New England should take notice that, with the single exception of Frye of Maine, who voted for it, and Aldrich of Rhode Island, who was absent, every Senator sent by their State Legislatures to represent them at Washington voted against the resolution.

Eighteen of the Senators who voted against the resolution are from States the Legislatures of which have joined in the demand for direct election. If these eighteen had voted "yes," as they were morally bound to do, there would have been seventy-two affirmative votes, ten more than two-thirds of the full Senate vote.

Such men as Senator Lodge and his New England colleagues voted against the resolution because they care more for office than for the good of the people, because they know that they WOULD NEVER AGAIN BE ELECTED to the Senate if the people did the voting. They have failed to understand the popular feeling or to obey the popular will. But such men will not much longer misrepresent the people of this nation, for the principle of direct election is bound to win.

The vote on the Borah resolution showed the weakness and desperation of the reactionaries.

Their ranks—once so compact and confident—have been riddled and their fight now is the fight of fleeing men.

It was, of course, foreseen by the AMERICAN and all competent observers that a two-thirds vote for the popular election of Senators could not be expected from the United States Senate as constituted until March 4.

The AMERICAN'S laborious campaign in forty-six State Legislatures was planned on that assumption. The Senate vote proves the good sense of the AMERICAN'S plan, since it proves the need of applying to the Senate the coercion of the State Legislatures, as provided by the Constitution.

With nearly three-fourths of the States already united for a Constitutional Convention, and the entire unanimity of the States practically assured, the resistance of a somewhat disreputable fraction of the Senate becomes a kind of border ruffianism or modern Shays's rebellion—more exasperating than formidable, and more picturesque than sane.

The success of this national movement is as sure as to-morrow's sunrise. THE AMERICAN WILL GO AHEAD WITH ITS WORK OF CLEARING THE WAY FOR A CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

An extra session of the Sixty-second Congress may, by quick action, make the convention unnecessary. Otherwise the convention will meet.

For the American people have no superstitious reluctance about improving the Constitution—by the means that the Constitution provides. The people are tired of machine-made Senators—sick also of the mangling of public business when the machine slips a cog or two.

This newspaper has repeatedly warned the reactionaries of the Senate that in refusing to take the initiative in the movement for the popular election of Senators they are challenging an irresistible force.

To-day the AMERICAN is able to say that there is no longer a doubt that THE SECOND CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION OF THE REPUBLIC WILL BE CALLED THIS YEAR—unless a special session of the Sixty-second Congress shall, within the next few months, pass a proper resolution submitting to the State Legislatures this question of the direct election of Senators.

FIVE NEW STATES HAVE BEEN ADDED TO THE ROLL of those that have made formal legislative demand upon Congress for the summoning of a constitutional convention.

Thus the number of State Legislatures that have now joined in this demand is THIRTY-THREE.

Two-thirds of forty-six is thirty-one. Thus the strength of the demand already made is more than sufficient.

The plain truth is that there is not a State in the Union where the Legislature dare resist the universal popular mandate for this reform.

The States that are not represented in the rollcall of thirty-three have been kept off the roll only by devices of political management on the tangles of red-tape.

Here is the roll of States now leagued in formal insurgency against the present character and composition of the Senate, with the dates when they severally made their protest and demanded the call of the convention:

Alabama	1909	Louisiana	1907	Oklahoma	1908
Arkansas	1901	Michigan	1908	Oregon	1903
California	1908	Minnesota	1901	Pennsylvania	1901
Colorado	1901	Mississippi	1910	South Carolina	1911
Delaware	1911	Missouri	1908	South Dakota	1907
Georgia	1897	Montana	1908	Tennessee	1905
Idaho	1908	Nebraska	1903	Texas	1901
Illinois	1903	Nevada	1908	Utah	1903
Indiana	1907	New Jersey	1907	Virginia	1903
Iowa	1907	North Carolina	1907	Wisconsin	1908
Kansas	1909	Ohio	1911	Wyoming	1895

The new States—Arizona and New Mexico—may, of course, be depended on.

There are only twelve States that have so far failed to speak.

As a public servant, with agencies in many States, the AMERICAN, with the newspapers of its alliance, has undertaken to concert the public impulse in many Legislatures and to standardize the form of the convention resolution so that there may be no chance for technical quibble as to its legal validity.

In some of the States whose resolution is half a generation old, it is found necessary to correct its form and bring it up to date.

The AMERICAN is determined that this cause shall not fail or be

Know Thyself

By ANGELA MORGAN

In the March Cosmopolitan Magazine.

REINED by an unseen tyrant's hand,
Spurred by an unseen tyrant's will,
Aquiver at the fierce command
That goads you up the danger hill,
You cry: "O Fate, O Life, be kind!
Grant but an hour of respite—give
One moment to my suffering mind:
I cannot keep the peace and live."
But Fate drives on and will not heed
The lips that beg, the feet that bleed.
Drives, while you faint upon the roads,
Drives, with a menace for a goad;
With fiery reins of circumstance
Urging his terrible advance
The while you cry in your despair,
"The pain is more than I can bear!"
Fear not the goad, fear not the pace,
Plead not to fall from out the race—
It is your own Self driving you,
Your Self that you have never known.
Seeing your little self alone.
Your Self, high-seated charioteer,
Master of cowardice and fear,
Your Self that sees the shining length
Of all the fearful road ahead,
Knows that the terrors that you dread
Are pigmies to your splendid strength;
Strength you have never even guessed,
Strength that has never needed rest.
Your Self that holds the mastering rein,
Seeing beyond the sweat and pain
And anguish of your driven soul
The patient beauty of the goal!

Fighting upon the terror field
Where man and Fate come breast to breast,
Pressed by a thousand foes to yield,
Tortured and wounded without rest,
You cried: "Be merciful, O Life!
The strongest spirit soon must break
Before this all-unequal strife,
This endless fight for failure's sake!"
But Fate, unheeding, lifted high
His sword, and thrust you through to die.
And then there came one strong and great,
Who towered high o'er Chance and Fate,
Who bound your wound and eased your pain
And bade you rise and fight again.
And from some source you did not guess
Gushed a great tide of happiness—
A courage mightier than the sun—
You rose and fought and, fighting, won!
It was your own Self saving you,
Your Self no man has ever known,
Looking on flesh and blood alone.
The Self that lives as close to God
As roots that feed upon the sod.
That one who stands behind the screen,
Looks through the window of your eyes—
A being out of Paradise.
The Self no human eye has seen,
The living one which never tires,
Fed by the deep eternal fires.
Your flaming Self, with two-edged sword
Made in the likeness of the Lord.
Angel and guardian at the gate,
Master of Death and King of Fate!

Direct Election Only Postponed

baffled or even delayed for lack of competent engineering in the public interest.

So successfully has the fight been waged to this hour that victory is already in the people's hands.

Not only is the convention assured, if a convention should be made necessary, but it is also settled that THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT, WHEN IT SHALL BE FRAMED AND PRESENTED TO THE LEGISLATURES, WILL BE RATIFIED BY THE REQUIRED THREE-FOURTHS OF THEM.

This movement is so general, so spontaneous, so resolute, so persistent, that it stands without parallel in American history—unless it may be compared with the uprising against slavery.

On one side of the controversy is an Upper House of Congress, braced as stubbornly for the maintenance of privilege and prerogative as is the death-stiffened English House of Lords.

On the other side of the controversy are the United States.

The States are insisting not upon State rights, but upon national rights. They are engaged in a struggle for national autonomy against the secession and rebellion of a privileged class.

Four times the House of Representatives has resolved upon a constitutional amendment for the election of Senators by direct vote of the people. But the Senate, which has turned its back upon the State Legislatures, has been deaf also to the insistent suggestions of the Lower House.

The Senate has always contained a sufficient number of the insensitive servants of corporate monopoly to defeat—by sinister influence, by parliamentary subterfuge or by mere brazen, tireless talk—any such measure of reform. As it is to-day, so it has been for two decades.

THE SENATORS WHO ARE SET AGAINST THIS MEASURE ARE, OF COURSE, THE SENATORS WHO COULD NOT BY ANY POSSIBILITY BECOME SENATORS AFTER THE MEASURE HAS PREVAILED.

They are fighting for their own sordid and discredited political lives.

Lodge, Root, Gallinger, Hale, Depew and the rest—to name them is to characterize them.

And their character is a convincing argument in favor of any great public object that they may oppose.

The agitation for this reform has swept the country like a fire—a fire kindled by the heat of men who hate it.

Those who have thus raised a glowing enthusiasm in the people are themselves enthusiastic for other and opposite things.

They hold their high places by the grace of corrupt political machines that could not grind their grists if the people had their say.

These Senators do not represent the people, but the exploiters of the people.

Their hour has struck—and they must go.

The people of the United States—yes, THE UNITED STATES THEMSELVES—HAVE MADE UP THEIR MINDS.

Good Intention Pavements

You know all about them, you say. You may find a new viewpoint in Tom Powers' moving picture laugh in the Sunday AMERICAN.
